

Who Is This Man?

"Who am I?" this man wonders—and city police and Royal Jubilee Hospital officials echo: "Who is he?" Young man, evidently in late 20s, was found unconscious early Thursday on downtown street, and taken to hospital observation ward. He says very little, moves slowly, holding his head as if in pain, but apparently is uninjured and in good health. If you know him, telephone city police.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

'Bill 43' Test Case Completed at Nelson

NELSON (CP)—Decision of the first test case concerning the recently-passed and highly-controversial British Columbia Trade-Unions Act, bitterly debated in the House as Bill 43, will be presented here June 30 by county court judge E. P. Dawson.

The case, Goloff Lumber Company, of Brilliant, versus the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and Ernest Boulet, union representative, was an application by the company for an injunction restraining the union from picketing the property of Goloff Lumber Company at Thurms and Brilliant.

The restraint, if granted, will be in force until a civil trial for damages entered by the company is finished. Goloff is suing the IWA for damages arising from alleged picketing by the union.

NOT SATISFACTORY

In his affidavit to the court, Goloff stated that contract negotiations with the union had not proved satisfactory and that the case had been referred to a conciliation board.

The union accepted the board's terms. They were refused by Goloff who had previously let a contract for the logging of his land.

The contract was taken by Mike Tomlin, formerly foreman of Goloff's mill and bush crew. They worked the contract until June 9 when the operation was picketed and Tomlin's crews refused to cross the lines.

DAMAGE WILL RESULT

Goloff's lawyer, Bruce K. Arlidge, of Nelson, told Mr. Justice E. P. Dawson that if the picketing continues, "irreparable damage" will result.

Under cross-examination by J. B. Varcoe of Trail, Goloff testified that he has been an independent lumberman since 1945 and that Tomlin had worked for him most of that time. He said he had given the contract to Tomlin as an incentive for greater production.

Mr. Varcoe said that Tomlin's being hired by Goloff as a contractor was a "sham set-up" and in effect, a lockout of the union. He stated that the injunction should not be granted, as it was simply a scheme to prevent the union from exercising its rights.

Mr. Arlidge said picketing of Goloff's property was in support of an illegal strike.

City Couple

Appointment of a new couple to superintend the Greater Victoria Juvenile Detention Home was announced last night by Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, chairman of the home committee.

Appointees are Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Ball, 2026 Richmond, chosen from more than 40 applicants for the job vacated three weeks ago by Lt.-Col. and Mrs. W. S. Dingley.

TAKE OVER SOON

Mr. and Mrs. Ball are expected to take over the position next week.

Mr. Ball, at present a chief guard at Yarrows Ltd., is a former commissioner at Thetis Lake Park and served on the Bermuda police force, where he and his wife worked with the girls remand committee. He also served with the United States Air Force.

QUEEN MIXES FREELY IN BACKWOODS CANADA

Informal Chats Fill Busy, Cheerful Day

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—The royal tourists landed Friday in a cloud of dust at the specially extended gravel airstrip at nearby Deer Lake and got a closeup of a big pulp and paper industry in all stages from the standing evergreens to the spools of newsprint.

It capped a busy and cheerful day that also saw the Queen distribute $10,000 worth of scholarships for retarded children in St. John's, open the new Gander air terminal and have some informal and unscheduled chats with friendly people along the way.

The scholarships set the style of gifts to the royal couple for this trip. There will be many similar funds and charities in her name by the time the 45-day, 15,000-mile tour ends in Halifax Aug. 1.

The weather was no problem. Fog lurked just off shore and seemingly anchored itself to the big icebergs that still loiter near the coast. But the Queen and Prince Philip weren't airborne long from St. John's before they saw bright sunshine.

She used the RCAF's swish VIP aircraft, a swank limousine and at Gander a modest low-priced convertible that seemed to suit the friendly atmosphere of the occasion.

The Queen smiled a lot and made a pretty picture in her Hartnell-St. Cyr combination—tangerine and white silk pleated dress, short-belted print jacket under a fairly heavy white coat, topped by a small white toque with three bows and white accessories.

Largest in World

She ran into fairly primitive conditions at the Deer Lake landing strip, described as having the largest waiting room in the world—"all outdoors." The ramp was an old-fashioned one and she used the rail to steady herself as it wobbled slightly.

A gust of wind caught the wide pleats of her skirt but it was smothered by the heavy coat. She laughed and made a girlish adjustment to a lower button.

Another example of the informality of the day occurred at Gander when she didn't bother to go around a rope guard but took a high step over it in order to get to a car where Mayor Jack Robertson, just recovering from an operation, was watching the activities.

She seemed disposed to dally along the way, giving the prince time to ask just about everybody he met what was his job. He was hatless and with his hands behind his back he strode about unhurried and obviously interested in everything.

At the new main terminal, where she had an easy conversation with Transport Minister Fies, the Queen stepped out of line once to talk to one of the souvenir counter clerks. It was the first time she has mingled freely with unofficial people along the route.

Police estimated that 16,000 turned out to see the Queen in Gander, which meant that outposts and villages for miles around were represented. They were a friendly lot, dressed in their Sunday best, and the response on both sides seemed spontaneous and genuine.

Great Stands of Fir

At Deer Lake the gravel landing strip had been lengthened to accommodate the royal plane and its accompanying squadron of aircraft.

Over the last stages of her flight Friday the Queen saw great green stands of spruce and fir that supply the big maws of the Corner Brook paper mill, turning out 1,100 tons of newsprint a day. Along the waterways she saw the results of the winter's cutting operations—great log booms that brown the surface and stir and creak toward the rushing flumes. She saw one boom of 50,000 cords being moved by a tug.

Later she entered the mill, one of the largest complete papermaking operations in the world. Her entrance was at a point where a flume hurled shining wet peeled logs onto a mountain high pile while great cascades of water welled it down as a fire precaution.

She talked with energetic workers along the way and found out their individual roles in the making of newsprint.

When she moved to the seclusion of a private fishing camp on the spectacular banks of the Humber River Friday night, there was a great boom of pulp at her window. It was feeding logs into the rushing white water. But there was plenty of free water and gear at hand if the prince wanted to go fishing before retiring.

Played with Zeal

The arrival at Deer Lake was as homey as anything yet on the trip. The Salvation Army band, which hopes soon to collect enough money to buy a bassoon, had practised the "Queen" softly over and over until her arrival. Then they played it with more zeal than has been heard so far on the trip. Bandmaster Muax Cole said he was proud of them.

After the handshaking at Deer Lake, the Queen drove the 34 miles to this big pulp-producing centre but the long stretch of gravel road had been salted and the dust was at a minimum.

At Deer Lake and 34 miles later at Corner Brook, the Queen passed lines of cheering, flag-waving and brightly-clad children and her car went slowly enough for everybody to get a good look.

The town of Corner Brook itself had a novel decorative scheme—illustrated Newfoundland songs: Jack Was Every Inch a Sailor and the Kelligrews Soiree and the Squid Jiggin' Ground.

Before leaving St. John's for Deer Lake shortly before noon the Queen and her consort attended a reception with 200 prominent residents of the capital. They also visited a construction site, where they mingled with awed workmen.

"The duke cracked a few jokes talkin' with me," said John Barrett of Bishop's Cove, a carpenter of 17 years, employed on construction of the $8,000,000 Confederation Building overlooking St. John's Harbor.

Premier Smallwood kept the royal couple occupied looking at maps and diagrams and a plastic-enclosed model of the 10-storey building. It will be Newfoundland's tallest structure and the home of provincial offices and the legislature.

Convicts Beat Jail Guard

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Three prisoners in Brandon provincial jail Friday beat a guard's face into a "bloody mess" as "an expression of sympathy" for another prisoner in a punishment cell, jail officials said.

Incident lasted less than 10 minutes but a full-scale riot could have developed if the other 63 inmates had not returned to their cells in an orderly manner.

Cable Ship Crew Heroic in Inferno

FALMOUTH, England (Reuters)—A tale of efficient heroism at sea unfolded here Friday as 98 weary survivors of a mid-Atlantic ship fire arrived aboard a rescue vessel.

The 98 men were rescued from the British cable-laying ship Ocean Layer last Monday. They were brought here by the rescue vessel, the German ship Flavia.

Dr. John N. Aldington, head of Submarine Cable Ltd., owners of the Ocean Layer, told the tale at a press conference. As flames and smoke billowed from every porthole, he said, the officers and men trooped in boat-drill fashion to their stations.

"As our lifeboats took the crew aboard, the officers checked the men. They immediately discovered they were two short."

One of the lifeboats returned to the blazing ship and picked up the two men from the sea. Capt. Gerhard Theune of the rescue ship described the Ocean Layer as "a raging inferno."

The skipper of the cable ship, Capt. Anthony McPherson Ross, said that in another 12 hours the ship would have completed its task, but added that the break in the cable would not be hard to find. Cable was to provide a new telephone service between Newfoundland and France.

Ogden D. Gensmer, mayor of Summit, N.J., was aboard the Ocean Layer in his capacity as a staff supervisory officer. "We could not have had better treatment," he said of his rescuers.

Burned Man Clings to Life

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Stubbornly clinging to life 24 hours after being severely burned by a 7,200-volt power line, German immigrant Hans Felch was flown to Vancouver for treatment Friday night.

Felch was working with a Canadian National Telegraphs line crew Thursday when his head touched the power line. The jolt knocked him free of the power line and he lay entangled in other wires until he was taken down 20 minutes later by a British Columbia Power Commission crew.

North Bay Mayor Shocked

Wedding Rings Cut Off To Meet Medical Debt

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—Mayor Merle Dickerson said Friday a 27-year-old expectant mother whose wedding and engagement rings were cut off to satisfy a debt or new ones.

"This shouldn't have happened in North Bay," he said of a bailiff's order Tuesday that Mrs. Glenavere Wilkes must give up her rings to satisfy a medical debt. "I am going to apologize to that poor girl on behalf of the Nipissing Bar Association and I'm going to see the local lawyers, especially the lawyer that handled the case and the doctor he represented. I feel that they will do something about it," the mayor said.

If the girl could not get her rings back, he would buy her new ones.

The bailiff's order stemmed from an appendicitis operation in 1953, before Mrs. Wilkes met her husband whom she married last fall. She paid $1 monthly on the account for some time. In April last year the case came to court and was dismissed when Mrs. Wilkes said she couldn't pay the bill.

She said in court Tuesday she still could not pay it and the doctor's lawyer asked that her rings, which she declared to be her only possessions, be given as payment.

They were cut off when she found she couldn't slip them off.

TV Star Resigns from CBC Over 'Indifference' to Queen

Switchboards Jammed To Protest Remarks

TORONTO (UPI)—Television star Joyce Davidson threw in the sponge last night and resigned from the CBC in the wake of a storm over her remarks that Canadians were "indifferent" to the royal tour.

The attractive, star of the Tabloid show, resigned, seen only in Eastern Canada, after network officials ordered a survey taken of her popularity.

ORIGINAL REMARK
Miss Davidson said, "Like most Canadians, I'm indifferent to the Queen," when she appeared on the Dave Garraway show on the NBC television network in New York Thursday.

She appeared again on the Garraway program Friday and added:

NO SPOKESMAN
"It was my own opinion. I wasn't acting as a spokesman for Canada."

But in a signed article in Toronto newspapers, she wrote: "I felt the Canadian public, including myself, was indifferent to the royal visit."

WON'T APOLOGIZE
She also refused Toronto Mayor Nathan Phillips' demand that she apologize for making the remark.

"There's nothing to apologize for," she wrote. "I haven't insulted the Canadian people and I haven't insulted the Queen."

INDEFINITE HOLIDAY
"CBC officials, however, said she is taking an indefinite holiday."

A spokesman explained: "She has not resigned. We haven't pressured her into anything. She has requested a holiday and we've agreed. She is taking a short holiday and the length of it is up to her."

SICK OF IT
In announcing her decision to resign, Miss Davidson said "I'm sick of the whole thing. I just want to stay out of the public eye for a while."

She added: "I was looking forward to returning to Tabloid on Monday, but I have decided to spare the CBC the inevitable embarrassment that my appearance would cause. I believe it is wiser for me to leave the program for a while."

MANY CALLS
The CBC officials said the switchboard at Toronto headquarters was jammed with calls throughout the day from Canadians expressing their viewpoints on her statement. They said the reaction was 9:1 against Miss Davidson's comments.

DOCTOR SPEAKS
A Toronto psychiatrist, Dr. Daniel Cappon, offered an explanation for the controversy.

He said Miss Davidson struck at the thing which gives Canadians their "identity"—the Queen, who stands as a psychological symbol for what he called "the good and loving mother."

NATIVE SONS
One of the minority who supported Miss Davidson was Bernard Claum, recording secretary of the Toronto branch of the Native Sons of Canada.

He sent her this telegram: "Congratulations. We're behind you 100 per cent. Stick to guns. Ignore adverse criticism."

Prisoners Like Tours

OTTAWA (UPI)—A CCF member of parliament says he agrees with the controversial royal tour comments of CBC television star Joyce Davidson, but admits that some Canadians feel differently—especially those in prison.

Prisoners, said Frank Howard (CCF, Skeena) "are always happy with royal tours because they're always accompanied by royal pardons and remissions."

"I'm sure it also pleases the justice minister and the officials in his department," Mr. Howard added, "because they will have fewer headaches on account of overcrowding."

First Time Since '36

Canneries Bidding For Fish

VANCOUVER (CP)—Salmon prices were posted at one of British Columbia's biggest canneries yesterday as canners began bidding competitively for available fish.

The action followed the accusation by the government combines investigator that the fishermen's union and the canners are guilty of price-fixing.

It is the first time there has been an open market for net-caught salmon since 1936.

Prices jumped from a half-cent to four cents over prices paid to fishermen last year by agreement.

Last year's prices were sockeye 28, coho 16, pink 9 1/2, red 16 and chums 7 1/2.

Other companies are expected to begin posting prices soon.

Ship Leaves, Sailor in Jail

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—The destroyer-escort HMCS Saguenay sailed from here without one of her crew members Friday.

The crew member, Able Seaman Richard A. McCarron, 21, was sentenced Thursday to nine months' jail after pleading guilty to assault causing bodily harm to Joseph Frank Wasitz, 23, of Prince Rupert.

Realtor's Bills Soar, But Birds Refuse

LADNER (CP)—Real estate man George Hodgins is paying about $300 a day just waiting for 200 baby blue herons to learn to fly.

It has cost him $2,000 so far and the end is not in sight.

Mr. Hodgins recently started clearing about 200 acres of land near here for a subdivision.

Vintage Year Coming Up

LONDON (Reuters)—London wine experts forecast Friday that 1959 will be a vintage year for French champagne.

"Already we have the quantity; now we are keeping our fingers crossed for sun in August to give us the quality," said Etienne Lanson, champagne producer from Heims.

Edmonton Man

Suicide 'Aiding' Trial Set

EDMONTON (CP)—Charles Laudan, 19, charged with aiding and abetting a person attempting to commit suicide, was committed for trial when he appeared in police court Friday.

The charge arose out of a shooting incident May 27. The crown said Robert Jensen, 20, and Laudan had been drinking in a car. Jensen said he was despondent over losing a girl friend and reached for the rifle, threatening to commit suicide.

He held the rifle to his stomach but could not reach the trigger, the prosecution claimed, and Jensen finally persuaded his companion to pull the trigger for him.

Jensen earlier was given a one-year suspended sentence for attempted suicide.

Louisiana Business Deadlocked

State Officials Fight for Reins Amid Crumbling Long Empire

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—A feud for control of Louisiana's state government erupted last night in the fantastic wake of Gov. Earl Long's commitment to a hospital for the insane.

The 63-year-old Long was himself down but definitely not yet counted out. Although behind bars of a state hospital, he obtained lawyers for an apparent struggle to obtain a public hearing to determine whether he is mad or insane.

The battle for control of the governorship swirled around Long, who claims he is not insane; Lieutenant Governor Luther Frazier, who reluctantly accepted the role of acting governor but was moving with utmost caution, and the secretary of state, a bitter Long enemy, who said he would not allow Frazier to sign papers as governor unless Long stated his inability to serve.

The situation threatened to deadlock many state functions until it is ironed out.

Earlier in the day he had a visit from J. O. Bankston, director of state hospitals, who complied with Long's request for attorneys of his own choosing. Bankston said the governor, who was forced to be identified, said he believed the governor's decision to go on a political stumping tour before his collapse was motivated by the persistent shadow of the man Earl Long has always been measured against, his brother Huey, who was shot to death in 1935, at the zenith of his political career, in a corridor of the state capital building. He was a U.S. senator.

Dr. Sparkman Wyatt said Long "seemed to have no awareness of illness on his part, but recognized abnormal behavior in other people."

"In his own words, the governor said he felt 'everyone else is nuts,'" Dr. Wyatt said.

ably confined as schizophrenic and paranoid, was under full medical care.

Frazier, after a conference with the attorney general, assumed reluctantly the job as lieutenant governor.

A few hours later, Secretary of State Wade O. Martin, Jr., one of Long's bitterest political enemies, said he would not recognize Frazier as acting governor.

Since Martin must attest the governor's signature on all official documents, his action could bring state government to a standstill.

Another physician who examined the governor during the course of his illness said the killing pace Long set during the past month was an attempt at suicide and subconsciously, the governor wants to be shot to death, as was his brother Huey.

The physician who asked not to be identified, said he believed the governor's decision to go on a political stumping tour before his collapse was motivated by the persistent shadow of the man Earl Long has always been measured against, his brother Huey, who was shot to death in 1935, at the zenith of his political career, in a corridor of the state capital building. Police Gun-Grabber Told:

You're Lucky To Be Alive

WINNIPEG (CP)—A man who threatened a policeman with his own service revolver was sentenced Friday to two years in penitentiary for assault and told he was lucky to be alive.

Charles Leo Vivier, 38, of Winnipeg, was charged with driving while disqualified, theft of a revolver, pointing a firearm, assaulting a police officer and wilful damage.

Vivier slugged Winnipeg constable Jack Talbot after he and another cruiser car policeman stopped Vivier in a car to check on his driver's licence. Const. Talbot's revolver was pulled from his holster and Vivier told the policeman he would shoot if he didn't go free.

They grappled and Vivier fled. He was captured a few minutes later with a flying tackle by the constable.

Magistrate Garton told him: "If you had been down in the United States and tried that, you could have been shot while trying to get away."

Geneva Talks Fail

THE foreign ministers' conference collapsed yesterday at Geneva after three changes of front on the Soviet side but no change of heart. The East German ultimatum over Berlin, set once for a date already passed, was put back a year and then a year and a half by Mr. Gromyko, but it remained as unacceptable in any form as it contained a direct negation of a principle. That principle is that the major powers victorious on the Allied side in the war are responsible for the writing of the eventual peace treaty with Germany. East Germany was not a great power then and is not a great power now—only a Soviet satellite. So the Allied treaties, conventions and pledges had been starkly overlooked.

Officially, the Geneva meeting has recessed for three weeks. It is difficult to see, however, what could happen in that time which would work any real change in the Soviet attitude. "Auctioning" the date of the implied ultimatum over Berlin in no way changes its implication, and that has been totally unacceptable to the Western powers from the beginning. Mr. Khrushchev knew that, and what Mr. Gromyko was given to say at Geneva can only be regarded as a Soviet testing of how firm the Western stand would be. Today there need be little doubt over that. Intransigence on the part of the Soviets has drawn the Western powers closer together in reality than ever before.

In the light of these circumstances, it is perhaps as well that a "summit" meeting did not take place. In view of what has transpired it might have had some prestige or propaganda value for the Kremlin, but the world has seen and weighed the respective arguments and a "no" at Geneva is just as strong as the same response would have been at a summit contact. On balance, the West emerges from Geneva with more unity and conviction than it entered the conference. That is a gain in any event.

A Sweeping Accolade

THE paradox of provincial and federal politics was never better illustrated than in Alberta on Thursday. A short 15 months ago the Conservatives swept the boards in the national election, with not a single parliamentary seat going to the Socreds. Two days ago the same voters reversed that situation on the provincial level, giving Alberta's Social Credit government no fewer than 61 out of 65 seats and reducing the Conservative and Liberal groups to the token representation of one seat each, and the CCF to zero. Truly federal and provincial elections are separate entities.

Thursday's landslide Socred victory cannot be gainsaid. It represents a spectacular triumph for the Manning administration. No particular issue was at stake, but coming after 24 years of continuous Socred reign—when normally some diminution of favor might be expected—the result means only one thing. That is that the people of Alberta are well satisfied with the government which has served them so long.

For Mr. Manning personally the election is an outstanding tribute. He has been premier for 16 straight years, and this latest mandate probably ensures him another four years at least. As the head of such a continuing administration his tenure of office creates a record in Canadian politics, and it is underscored by the re-election of every member of his 12-man cabinet.

Yet this resounding victory—because the allocation of seats under the direct vote system may contrast with ballot percentages—does not reflect the overwhelming sentiment it suggests. The Socreds gained the majority popular vote but nevertheless 47 per cent of the ballots cast were of opposite persuasion. That indicates a large percentage of adverse viewpoint even if it will be reduced to a whisper in the new legislature.

It is the number of seats that count however and nothing can take away from Mr. Manning's repeated success. If anything he is apt to be embarrassed by too much legislative support, and this is the disquieting feature of Alberta's election. Government is best served when it has an opposition of the size and strength to compel restraint. It is not good for either a party or a people for it to have its own way too easily.

Tourist Competition

ALTHOUGH this part of the country has been more than holding its own, the tourist business of Canada as a whole appears to have taken a downward turn. Confronted with statistics showing that the number of U.S. visitors dropped by 3 per cent last year, a dismayed House of Commons committee has been searching for reasons for this apparent decline in Canada's popularity.

An explanation should not be too hard to find. It lies in the fact that the "customers" are being offered a much wider choice. In retail business the more stores there are in a town the more trade is dispersed, and the tourist business is subject to the same fundamental laws. Almost every country in the world is competing now for tourist trade which used to belong almost exclusively to Canada, and in the last year or two the increase in trans-Atlantic journeying has been enormous. If last year only three out of every hundred vacationers in the United States went to Britain, Europe, the Caribbean, Mexico, Japan or some other of the numerous countries now ultra "tourist-conscious" instead of coming north, Canada should consider itself well favored and not yield to despondency.

For a long time Canada had things all its own way with Americans of moderate means, but the speed and cheapness of long-distance travel have changed that. Now, for not much more than a holiday in Canada would cost, Americans with only two weeks' vacation time to use can have ten or 12 days in a land that is really "foreign" and different, and with the choice of a dozen or more.

It is the element of difference which is beginning to work against Canada, and to that disadvantage the tourist industry itself has contributed by its determination in numerous foolish ways to make Americans "feel at home", whereas that is the last feeling the average vacationer wants to enjoy. There is little enough difference between Canada and the United States, and too many of those catering to visitors from the south have been accentuating the similarity. Transparent "gimmicks" to lure visitors can be equally harmful.

Brazil in Difficulties

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign Editor

BRAZIL, potentially one of South America's richest nations, once more is struggling desperately to keep out of the red.

Since 1945 Brazil has passed through a succession of economic crises, each one more grave than the last.

In the first 10 years after the last war, she received some $600,000,000 in American loans. In the last 10 years, prices have risen 1,000 per cent. The cruzeiro, Brazil's unit of currency, has slipped to a value of only about three-quarters of a cent.

Despite her other riches, Brazil's has been a coffee economy, and as coffee prices slipped so did Brazil's economy.

The single act of the former Vargas administration which today is blamed for touching off Brazil's vicious inflationary spiral occurred on May 1, 1934. It was a decree doubling minimum wages. Prices, already high, shot skyward.

At almost the same time, Brazil set a minimum price on coffee of 87 cents a pound. Vargas' attempt to extort from world coffee market the price of industrial expansion at home boomeranged. The coffee market broke.

Vargas, a strongman for 20 years, had become Brazil's legally elected president in 1950.

From the start he courted the working classes, regardless of the effect on the country's economy. He found a willing audience. For in the cities, many lived in misery within sight of riches, and in the rural areas others lacked even the necessities.

They also provided a fertile field for communism.

There was another set of circumstances which contributed to today's ills, created by leaders who found it politically profitable to promote a questionable sort of nationalism.

It was this that led to Petrobras, Brazil's state-owned oil monopoly in which no foreigners are permitted to hold shares. Brazil is estimated to have enormous oil reserves, yet while petroleum imports soar, her oil lies idle in the ground because Brazil has neither the technical ability nor the money to get it out.

Unemployment A Disease

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

LABOR Minister Michael Starr is seeking a new way of assessing the unemployment situation, and he is in a position that should enable him to present all the facts and come up with a realistic assessment. That might not solve the problem of unemployment, but it should at least clarify the situation and lead to a sane approach to its solution. Meanwhile I have been making a few inquiries among the unemployed, and I have received a letter from a middle-aged tradesman, a union member and a veteran of the Second World War, who had to quit a good job at his trade because of a heart condition. He writes:

"This is a question which should be assessed in the right light once and for all. In the first instance, no blame should be attached to any individual cabinet minister, or government for that matter. Canada is not alone with an unemployment problem. All countries in the industrial scheme of things are hit concurrently. 'There is a howl going out in a certain newspaper in England about the situation in Canada—how immigrants have been taken in' by moving to Canada. Why did they leave the old country? Unemployment!"

"Secondly, unemployment should be reclassified. Let's put it alongside some of the other scourges of mankind—heart disease, diabetes, cancer—something we have to learn to live with. Let's put it in a category whereby it will be an offence for a politician to kick it around. At present this kind of football is becoming a year-round political sport.

"Unemployment statistics should be available in a more broken-down form, rather than the flat statement of presenting them. How about getting the facts by areas, urban and suburban; by part-time carpenter, part-time farmer, part-time butcher, etc.? Let's find out who the regulars are, and why. We will always have these types with us, along with certain ones on the available but not capable list, as well as the bona-fide seasonal tradesmen and laborer.

"Unemployment statistics should only include the actual persons making a sincere effort to secure work and unable to do so. If there is to be a new look at unemployment, let us decide first why we want a new look. If it is just for the sake of a political manoeuvre, let's forget about the whole thing. Outlaw the subject; ban it from the realm of controversy. It's a major national incurable disease."

The writer of the above wishes to be anonymous. He spent several months under observation in a military hospital. Doctors advised him not to return to his trade, but to seek work that would not put any strain on his heart. That is an individual case of what may be called industrial casualty, for which there is some provision.

But what about the present situation in general and the periodic recurrence of unemployment? Is that, too, a disease? The dictionary defines disease as, "Any morbid or depraved condition, moral, mental, social, political, etc."

Personally, I think we are suffering from political neurosis, due to a morbid fear of social and industrial decline. We are forever feeling our pulse and taking our blood-pressure with the cost-of-living index and unemployment statistics, and the quick politicians are prescribing expensive tonics in the form of social securities, higher wages and fringe benefits, which only aggravate the disease.

"What's the master plan on short-range interservice ballistic missiles?"

Washington Angle

Difficult Balance

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WHEN General Eisenhower first came under wide discussion as a presidential candidate there were prophets of gloom who said that a military man in the White House would militarize the government and regiment the nation.

But the general himself was concerned lest as a military man he bend over backward to prove that he was not unduly influenced by his past and by his old friendships. He was fearful that in bending over backward he would fail to do what was essential for America's military security in a time of great peril.

There are critics today observing the trials and tribulations of a military man in the White House prepared to say that both prophecies have come true. Given "E" for effort in trying to strike a difficult balance between civilian authority and military necessity, the general president has found himself in increasing difficulty.

Traceable more or less directly to the White House is the line fed out to sympathetic carriers that the Joint Chiefs of Staff is failing in its duty. As the principal agent of America's strategy, the JCS is continually dividing along the lines of service rivalry and presenting split decisions to the secretary of defence and the commander-in-chief. This has accentuated the inter-service fight over missiles and missions.

But from the military point of view it has another look. A deficiency in civilian authority has widened the service split. First is the fact that the Bureau of the Budget has been permitted to set spending ceilings, and the economy five years ago began to dictate the cutback of conventional forces. In the second place, civilian authority in the Pentagon has too often been vacillating and feeble.

According to some of his associates, Secretary of Defence McElroy is currently in the process of re-examining the whole unhappy business of the civilian-military relationship with its overtones in the politics of 1960. The drama of McElroy's near withdrawal and return encompasses much of the recent struggle.

At the worst possible moment the news of McElroy's return to the soap business in the fall was "leaked out." Then came the death of Deputy Secretary Donald Quarles, who had been carrying most of the load. This included the fight to defend the incredibly costly—perhaps as high as $3,500,000,000 to date—experimental development of the Bomarc Air Force missile.

Quarles' death left McElroy in something like a state of shock. It seemed to rule out his plan to return to his business in October. This in-and-out pattern of business executives has, incidentally, been one of the major problems of the Eisenhower administration, not only in defence but everywhere in government.

Taking a more intensive look at his vast domain, the secretary of defence has begun to assert a new authority. He called the Joint Chiefs of Staff to his office the other day and his blunt language was roughly as follows:

"I don't happen to have had any connection with the trade schools that you men went to. It's possible to understand your loyalty to those trade schools. But it's time that you found another and common loyalty."

Certainly, the course is a rough one. Senators fight like tigers to keep defence contracts going where those contracts mean jobs, even though in military terms the product is demonstrably superfluous or even useless. When a Senate subcommittee whacked off the army's air defence missile program the governor of a southern state got the senator from that state who had voted for the cut on the phone and scorched him for knocking out 7,000 jobs and putting his own future in jeopardy.

Without firm civilian authority over the military establishment sprawled so far across the landscape in the cold war the services and their spokesmen are bound to get out of hand. The late John Foster Dulles spent a great deal of time and energy trying to persuade the military to agree on terms for ending nuclear tests with control and inspection.

The president talks privately about the "munitions lobby" and he has been known to fulminate against the "military lobby" in the Pentagon. Only forceful and effective civilian direction can checkmate that kind of lobbying.

Reports From Ottawa

WHY sex?

Judges across the land will have to ask themselves that question if Parliament enacts Justice Minister Fulton's new definition of literary obscenity:

"...any publication a dominant characteristic of which is the undue exploitation of sex... shall be deemed to be obscene."

That is the Fulton finger in the dyke designed to hold back a rising flood of printed pornographic material, a flood of such proportions that the earnings of ladies of the night are only penny ante pickings in the total business of selling sex.

In effect, it is a definition which seems to declare that if an author writes a sexy book for dollars, his book is obscene. But if he writes a sexy book for reasons other than a desire to make money—for example, if he uses sexual sequences in the delineation of character or the development of plot—his book is not obscene.

"Exploitation," says the Shorter Oxford, means "the action of utilizing for selfish purposes." In the context and relationship in which Fulton uses the word, it is synonymous with commercialization.

Fulton appears to recognize that if the book-consuming public demands "frankness" and "realism" in fictional portrayal of human relationships, an author cannot ignore sex if he wants to earn a livelihood at his trade.

So, presumably, he has to include a dollop of sex in his mss., or the publisher will return the mss. with a rejection slip.

This dollop would appear under the Fulton formula to be "due" exploitation, and permissible. Only "undue" exploitation of sex would constitute obscenity.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

DOVE-COTES were a feature of both country and city homes for centuries all over Britain and Europe.

In some of the old paintings and drawings these pigeon lofts are shown as elaborate and quite ornamental components of the architecture of mansions and manor houses, fine chateaux in France and stately palazzos in Italy. To the sentimental student, these dove-cotes impart a lovely sense of the charming character of ye olden time.

But dove-cotes were strictly mundane. They were, in fact, more important than the chicken pen. They were a basic source of food for the house during the lean seasons of winter and spring. Pigs had to be slopped, chickens had to be fed, there had to be hay for the cattle.

But pigeons were an economical item. They foraged for themselves. They foraged far and wide, over the neighbors' estates. In each darling dove-cote was a trap room in which next week's squabs were lovingly incarcerated while being fattened with generously donated food, specially for the table.

In many a town today pigeons are classified as nuisances. Hardly anybody realizes that these birds are the descendants of our forefathers' livestock.

They try to tell us, with their strutting and pouting, that without their ancestors we mightn't be here.

With the Classics

God made the country, and man made the town.

What wonder then that health and virtue, gifts

That can alone make sweet the bitter draught

That life holds out to all, should most abound

And least be threaten'd in the fields and groves?

Possess ye, therefore, ye who, borne about

In chariots and sedans, know no fatigue

But that of idleness, and taste no scenes

But such as art contrives, possess ye still

Your element; there only can ye shine;

There only minds like yours can do no harm.

—WILLIAM COWPER

Potato Peeler Proves Point

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pte. Andrew God Jr. now stands cleared by a court martial of a charge that he destroyed government property.

It seems his captain and his mess sergeant felt he was peeling potatoes too thick. He was slicing out the eyes instead of digging them out.

God, who is an architect by trade, convinced the court martial Thursday that his potato peeling methods were as good, if not better, than any.

Maj. Robert Stenger, who sat as the court martial officer, had some trouble maintaining a judicial manner.

It was particularly hard on the major when the prosecution sought to show that God had "wilfully suffered potatoes of some value, the military property of the United States, to be destroyed by improper peeling."

Another soldier, Eugene Jaskiewicz, was accused along with God by Capt. Thomas Woods. Jaskiewicz decided not to demand trial and Woods punished him with a sentence of two hours hard labor daily for 14 days.

But God persisted in risking trial, and told his court martial:

"You can't jab a potato with a knife and dig into it. If the knife slips, you've got it in your hand."

The mess sergeant gave the court a demonstration of how he said the two men were whacking away. When Johnson got through with his demonstration potato, there wasn't much left.

But the defence counsel proved to the court's satisfaction that the peellings sliced off by the mess sergeant weighed more than God's.

Counsel was able to show this because Capt. Woods had been saving some of the God-sliced peellings for a month. He had a whole pan of them.

Court Stops 'Strip Act'

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—An attempt by a Sons of Freedom Doukhobor woman to strip in magistrate's court was stopped Friday when she was expelled from the court.

The woman was one of the mothers of three Freedomite children who ran away from the B.C. government school at New Denver and were picked up early Friday by RCMP.

THREE DAUGHTERS

The children are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Tarasoff and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davidoff, of Goose Creek, and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Pictin of Shoreacres.

They appeared in court to be identified by the magistrate for re-admittance to New Denver.

The three brought to seven the number of truants caught by police this week and to 20 the number caught this month. Meanwhile, RCMP announced that two 13-year-old girls disappeared from the New Denver dormitory Friday morning.

New Denver principal John Clarkson, who discovered the disappearance at roll call Friday, said a ban against parents' visiting their children at the school first imposed May 24 will continue indefinitely.

Picketing in Durban

Women Rioters Switch Tactics

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI)—Angry African women, who rioted and wrecked municipal beer halls turned to mass picketing yesterday in a switch of tactics in the conflict over homebrew.

Police had to use tear gas and fire hoses to scatter several hundred Africans and Indians outside the Victoria Street beer hall. But police reported this city appeared to be settling down after three Africans were killed and about 100 injured in yesterday's riots.

Police arrested 30 women who participated in a demonstration outside the Rossburgh beer hall in protest against raids on their illegal home breweries.

More than 1,000 women picketed Clairwood beer hall and 100 others showed up at Umgeni beer hall.

A group of women, joined by their menfolk, assembled outside the Montgomery beer hall in suburban Lamontville. The women pickets marched quietly. They said they wanted no further trouble with police.

At Capetown, South African

Justice Minister Charles Swart told the house of assembly that law and order had been restored in the Durban riot areas. He said a white policeman, shot during the fighting, was not in serious condition.

Swart said between 20 and 25 buildings had been burned by the rioters. The women moonshiners considered the municipal beer halls unfair competition for their illegally brewed beer, he said.

$421,000,000 Ottawa Take From Liquor

OTTAWA (CP)—Government revenue from control and taxation of alcoholic beverages in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1958, totaled $421,000,000, an increase of $29,000,000 from the previous year, the bureau of statistics reported Friday.

Terrorists Promised Cuban Firing Squad

HAVANA (UPI)—The revolutionary government said yesterday that persons found guilty of terrorist acts would be liable to the death penalty. The announcement was made by Justice Minister Alfredo Yabur, as Prime Minister Fidel Castro condemned the current upsurge of terrorism as criminal and said he had received a great many messages urging the establishment of revolutionary tribunals to sentence the terrorists to death by firing squads.

The daily press unanimously criticized the terrorist outbreaks, in the wake of nine bomb explosions within the Havana area in the past 24 hours.

Police chief Maj. Efigenio Almeida attributed the increase in terrorism to former army men who served under ousted dictator Fulgencio Batista. He said some captured terrorists bore documents confirming they were engaged in counter-revolutionary activities.

"We are alert and will answer their aggression with characteristic firmness," Almeida said.

May Rival Colosseum

'Biggest Arena' Found in Rome

ROME (Reuters) — Italian archeologists have discovered a Roman circus arena, dating from the third century A.D., which may rival the splendor and magnificence of the Roman Colosseum.

Began during the turbulent and bloody reign of the Emperor Heliogabalus, it is probably about 500 yards long and 120 yards wide, the archeologists said.

Diego de Henriquez, director of the Military Museum, who supervised the excavations, said the circus "is probably the biggest sporting arena of all times and was obviously endowed with a wealth of installations and equipment."

So far, more than 20 feet of the original brick seating, stairways, passages and vaults have been unearthed in almost perfect condition.

By Rudolf Flesch

A few weeks ago Life had a feature on the Pulitzer prize-winning play "J. B." by Archibald MacLeish. There were excerpts from the play and comments by three prominent clergymen.
 "J. B." is a modern version of the Book of Job. MacLeish pretty much stuck to the original (in modern dress, etc.)
 but changed two things: His modern Job's wife leaves him when the going gets rough;
 and at the end of the play she returns and their loves provides the happy ending. When the show ends, the audience remembers the line "Blow on the coals of the heart."

Job's Trial Retraced in Bible

Rather started, I went to my Bible and reread the Book of Job. As you'll remember, Job is a rich man with seven sons and three daughters,
 7,000 sheep, 3,000 camels, 500 yoke of oxen, 500 she-asses,
 "and a very great household."
 Satan talks Job into testing his piety by killing all his children and animals and taking away all his possessions. When this doesn't do the trick, he gives Job sore boils from head to foot. Job's wife tells him "Curse God and die," but he resists the temptation.
 Then come the three comforters, Job does curse God,

Ending a 'Distinct Letdown'

I always thought, and still think, that this is one of the most tremendous stories ever written. Dr. Niebuhr doesn't think so. He says the business with the doubled animals and the new set of children "is a materialistic conclusion." Mac-Leish's sentimental ending, he says, "is more adequate." The Bible ending, he says, "is a distinct letdown."
 Well, you can't argue about things like that. I feel like uncounted millions of other people, that it's gloriously satisfying to learn that trust

OTTAWA (CP)—A new study is planned of the "teenaged" whooping crane, the vulnerable member of the state's birds now staging a hard fight for existence.
 The plan was outlined to the federal-provincial conference on wildlife by L. A.
 Parker, assistant director of the United States bureau of sport fisheries and wildlife.
 He said the greatest loss among those not yet old enough to breed.
 Accordingly, the bureau is sending a man into the Canadian North to attempt to find what happens to this age group. The only known northern nesting area for the whoopers—who now total 39 birds—is in the Wood Buffalo Park area on the Alberta-Northwest Territories boundary.
 The total of 39 includes six in captivity and is the highest since the big, piercing-voiced birds began to be counted in 1938.
 The conference also discussed the dwindling of North America's duck population.
 The spectre of drought on a scale comparable with the 1930s has cut deep into the prolific pothole nesting population on the southern Prairies

Burnside Threesome Wins Malkin Cup Triples Event

Alf Turton's Burnside Lawn Bowling Club team, with Steve Kinsey and Tommy Campbell playing a supporting role, is the latest winner of the annual Malkin Cup men's triples competition.

Finals were run off last weekend and saw the Turton trio defeat Tommy Owens' Victoria Club team 18-10 in a brilliant match played at Burnside.

Owens, skipping for Bert Tallick and Jack Green, found the Turton team in rare form even though the latter were playing without regular skip Art Ashford. Ashford was forced to the sidelines with an injured back—moving Turton up a notch.

Consolation final of the above competition was also held last weekend with Victoria West, comprised of Jim Keating, Sam Keating and W. W. Davidson, defeating Jim Buchanan, Stan Turner and Will Evans of CPR 21-11.

Semi-finals and finals of the Fairall Men's Scotch Doubles will be played today at Victoria West. Semi-finals begin at 9:30 a.m. and finals are to be played at 2 p.m.

Charles Hutchinson and Ernie Stott of Victoria West play Stan Baker and George Asquith of CPR in a morning match.

Speaking Briefly

The champion soccer team of Peru, the Municipal Club of Lima, is on its way to Canada for a proposed four-game tour which may never get into the dressing room.

Senor Caesar Mantalla, team manager, has arrived in Toronto to find that soccer officials in the proposed tour cities—Vancouver, Winnipeg, Montreal and Toronto—were not interested and negotiations had been broken off.

George Anderson, secretary of the Canadian Soccer Association, began negotiations with the Lima team for a tour late this month. Anderson says

Giants Take Over From Milwaukee

San Francisco Giants finally passed the Milwaukee Braves yesterday as major league pennant races got tighter than ever.

Climaxing a steady pursuit, the Giants scored two runs in the 10th inning to edge the Braves, 4-3, in the opener of a three-game series and move into the National League lead by a half game.

Outfielder Jackie Brandt was the game's biggest hero, singling in the tying and winning runs after the Braves had gone ahead in the top of the 10th on Billy Bruton's fifth home run.

Largest San Francisco crowd of the season—22,984 jam-packed fans—cheered as the Giants got a rally going when Willie Mays walked and Orlando Cepeda singled him to third.

The Braves replaced starter Bob Buhl with relief ace Don McMahon, who walked Darryl Spencer to load the bases. Brandt then smashed his third single of the game into right field.

FACE RESTS

The Pirates didn't need Elroy Face yesterday as Vernon Law finished what he started, blanking the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-0, with four-hit pitching which moved his club within two games of the top.

And the Dodgers, getting fine pitching from Roger Craig, recently recalled from Spokane, hung tough in fourth place with a 6-2 win over the steadily-dropping Cincinnati Reds.

The Cubs lost a bit of ground when they couldn't quite overcome an early 7-2 Philadelphia lead and finally went under, 8-7.

Matters got uncomfortably

Tourist Value of Fishing
Shown by Contest Entries

Just what its good fishing means to Vancouver Island's tourist business is pointed up each day in The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest lists.

It is safe to say that during the holiday months more salmon are taken off the Island's east coast resort areas by visitors than by residents.

Entries received yesterday, for instance, were made by anglers from such widely-separated points as Calgary and Charlotte, North Carolina and Houston, Texas.

Other entries were made by Californians from Redwood City, Arcadia, Los Angeles, Big Bear Lake, Monterey, Chula Vista, West Hollywood, Stockton, Palm Springs, San Marino, El Monte, Sunland, Riverside and Altadena.

Represented, too, were anglers from Albany, Oakland and Klamath Falls in Oregon and Seattle and Yakima in Washington.

They're catching fish, and spending money.

Hidden-Weight Prizes Awarded

Anglers Win Rods and Reels

Charlie Guiguet, 2399 Dalhousie, and Bob Lyon, 558 Cornwall, two of Victoria's more successful anglers, are the winners of the two top prizes in the May hidden-weight draw in the Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest.

And Mrs. Win Rose of 1227 Union was the winner of the special prize of a $10 scrip offered by the T. Eaton Co. to a disaffair angler.

Guiguet, who entered more than a dozen salmon during a hot streak off Oak Bay in the early part of May, won a complete spinning outfit consisting of a Zebeo reel and a Conolon rod. His winning fish was a seven-pound spring salmon which was entered at the Oak Bay Boathouse.

Lyon, who also scores consistently with salmon, won his prize in the hidden-weight draw with a six-and-a-half-pound trout he took out of Cowichan Lake and entered at Pallie's Place.

He won the top prize, donated by Edward Lipsett Ltd., of an Ocean City "starless" drag reel, a Sea King glass rod and 600 feet of Tynex monofilament line.

Two young anglers won themselves Conolon spinning rods—Peter Bridgewood of 3236 Seaton, who entered a one-pound, four-ounce small-mouth black bass at the Black Swan, and David Gillies, whose winning fish was a trout of the same size which he entered at Central Meat Market.

Tom Alexander of Brentwood and L. W. McClintick of 1939 Boucher, two more anglers who entered a number of fish last month, each won a kit of six assorted Strip and Minnow Teasers. Winning fish for Alexander was a seven-pound, 14-ounce spring salmon entered at Gilbert's Boathouse, for McClintick an eight-pound, 10-ounce salmon entered at Brentwood Boat Rentals.

Mrs. Mary McPhee of Lake Cowichan, who has a record of consistent success in Cowichan Lake, and Jim Gammie of Ladysmith each won 450 feet of Sunset braided nylon line. Mrs. McPhee's winning fish was a four-pound, nine-ounce trout entered at Art Hancock's. Gammie won with an eight-pound, six-ounce salmon entered at the Horseshoe Bay Inn, Chemainus.

Every fish entered by a Colonist subscriber means another chance to win the scores of hidden-weight prizes being given away. There are draws for each of the six months of the contest—May to October—and then the big hidden-weight draw at the end of the contest.

All fish entered in the contest by subscribers go into the main hidden-weight draw which will have as first prize a holiday trip for two, for two weeks, at the Mexican resort city of Acapulco.

Other prizes on a still incomplete list include a 12-foot Feathercraft cartop boat, an English-made Seachief outboard motor donated by Edward Lipsett Ltd., an Elizabeth Arden fitted cosmetic case (for lady entrants only) donated by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., and two Goodyear snow tires donated by the O.K. Tire Store on Fifth Street.

What do you look for in a STATION WAGON?

✓ Ample load space

Most station wagons have disappointingly little load space. By contrast, the International Travelall has generous cargo space 63" wide, 36" long and 51" high when rear seats are removed. You can actually lay a sheet of plywood on the floor, with rear doors closed.

✓ Roomy passenger space

Eight big men have plenty of head room and leg room in the spacious Travelall. There's no crouching when you get in and out—a welcome change from ordinary cramped station wagons. An extra curbside door gives convenient access to the rear seats.

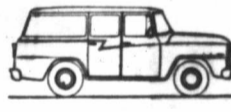

✓ Attractive, sensible styling

You'll be proud of the Travelall wherever you go. Twin headlights, chrome bumpers, long lean lines, and two-tone styling make it as smart as it's practical. But because styling is not extreme, it costs less to keep the Travelall looking show-room new.

✓ Sound engineering

The Travelall is a practical station wagon that's built to last! Frame is strong to carry substantial loads. High clearance lets you drive over roads that would damage a passenger-car type station wagon. Steering is easy and positive. Available with 4-wheel drive.

Nimkish Licence May Be Held Up By Court Action

Proceedings were started in British Columbia Supreme Court in Vancouver yesterday to hold up a forest management licence for Canadian Forest Products Limited.

A delay has been asked until a successor is named to replace the late Gordon M. Sloan.

Lawyer Ronald M. Howard applied for a date for hearing of the application of Western Forest Management Association for a writ of prohibition directed to Lands and Forests Minister Williston.

NO URGENCY

Application was set by Mr. Justice A. E. Lord for Sept. 14 when Howard said there was no urgency.

Canadian Forest Products advertised that it intends to apply for a tree farm licence.

WEATHER CHECK

The barometer for measuring pressures was invented by the Italian Torricelli in the 17th century.

in the Nimkish River area of northern Vancouver Island.

The association contends that the forest act still requires a hearing of such applications by a forest adviser, despite an amendment at the last session permitting the minister to hold hearings.

BATTLE OF LAWYERS

Lands and Forests Minister Williston described as a "battle of lawyers" the writ seeking to restrain him from issuing the licence to Canadian Forest Products, Ltd.

Mr. Williston said he took the matter up with the attorney-general's department and was advised that he had freedom to issue the licence.

He said the attorney-general's department would handle the case.

Twenty-six lambs will be barbecued before open fires on the beach. Dinner will be served starting at 2.30 p.m., but sports for the children and games for adults will begin at 11 a.m.

Enlarged floats are being built this year to accommodate the more than 100 small and large boats which are expected to attend.

Probe Resumes Tuesday In Car-Chip Truck Crash

LAKE COWICHAN—Inquest into the fatal car-chip truck accident near here earlier this week which took three lives will be resumed Tuesday.

Killed were Charles F. Fisher, 75; Mrs. Agnes Hughes, 35, and her three-year-old daughter, Lorretta.

The car in which they were riding Tuesday on the North Shore Road, four miles west of here, near the Sunset Auto Park, was hit and then dragged about 60 feet by a chip truck and full trailer with a combined weight of 72,000 pounds.

The only witness, John Munson, driver of the chip truck, will be called to give evidence.

He was driving a truck owned by Hearsey Transport Ltd. and subcontracted to Youhou Transport Ltd., not a Honeymoon Bay Transport Ltd. truck as reported in an earlier story.

Proceedings will start at the office of coroner Dr. Edgar Gee at 7 p.m.

Trustee Raps Bylaw Critics

DUNCAN—Criticism of the $1,155,292 school by-law vote in this district by some residents in the southern area was branded as "nonsense" yesterday by board chairman Jon Homer.

A group of ratepayers in the Cobble Hill area are circulating a petition that asks the board to "reconsider" before taking the bylaw to a vote.

'ACTED TOO QUICKLY'

One of the group, George Bonner of Cobble Hill, said, "We feel the trustees acted too quickly and we are asking reconsideration on the grounds that no meetings were held to ascertain the opinions of the ratepayers regarding the economy of the district and the needs of the pupils."

CHARGES DENIED

Mr. Homer emphatically denied the accusations by Mr. Bonner, a former school board trustee, and said that public meetings were held and that the trustees acted "in accordance" with the Public Schools Act.

"Mr. Bonner was not even at the meeting that was held in his district," said the Cowichan school district chairman.

The bylaw was to be voted on last Saturday but was delayed because Education Minister Leslie Peterson was on holiday.

No date has since been set.

Mr. Bonner said a decision to circulate the petition came at a meeting Thursday night at the home of Mrs. John Hilton.

REDUCE SCHOOL

Main complaint, said Mr. Bonner, is that residents resent the board's decision to reduce status of George Bonner Junior-Senior High School to a junior high school.

The board named the school after Mr. Bonner.

Khrushchev Confident Of Summit

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev says a summit meeting will become even more imperative if the foreign ministers fail at Geneva. He confidently predicted that the heads of state will confer.

"I would be glad to go, not only to one, but to several summit meetings," he announced.

ANDREI GROMYKO
... settlement possible

Big Four Ministers Recess Until July 16

GENEVA (Reuters) — The Big Four foreign ministers decided Friday to recess their talks on Berlin and other German problems until July 13.

The conference after 40 days — will adjourn after today's brief formal session, still without any temporary or long-term agreement on any of the problems before it.

Although the talks are still deadlocked, a Soviet spokesman said Friday night that Russia believes the work done here "is of certain positive significance." And Foreign Minister Gromyko said it was still "quite possible" that a settlement could be reached.

The Western foreign ministers issued a statement saying they had suggested the recess to give Russia "the opportunity of considering the Western proposals further." It also would give the West an opportunity to consider the latest Soviet views.

Teacher Swings Too Hard

A Sidney school teacher who joined in a softball game with her Grade 3 pupils yesterday stepped up to bat, waited for the pitch, took a swing and broke her ankle.

The teacher, Mrs. Grace Madill, was later reported "doing well" at Rest Haven Hospital. The accident happened during a games period at Sidney Elementary School.

Bingo Prize

Last Chance To Qualify For Holiday

Today is the last day for Kinsmen bingo patrons who want to qualify for the bonus prize of a two-week, expenses-paid vacation to any city in North America.

Tickets sold from Eaton's box office up to 5 p.m. today make purchasers eligible for the contest. Tickets will be sold at the box office up to 5 p.m. June 29, the night of the bingo game in Memorial Arena.

Some 5,800 tickets have already been sold, Jack Phillips, bingo committee chairman, said last night. He advised all holders of tickets to fill in their entry forms for the vacation contest.

Aid. Geoffrey Edgell is now quite sure of the success of a new, Victoria-made plastic bladder for the once-sagging centennial balloons, he said last night. One of the bladders, on test for almost a week, was still holding up firmly late yesterday.

200-Pound Animal Crept Up on Trail

GLACIER PARK, Mont. (AP)—A female grizzly bear crept up on a resting college student Thursday and licked the back of his neck.

The startled student turned around and the grizzly slashed and mauled him severely while a companion attempted to distract the animal by pounding it with a rock.

The body of the 200-pound bear, with three-inch claws, was located Friday. The bear tumbled down a mountainside after park rangers shot and killed it Thursday night.

DEEP WOUNDS

Joseph L. Williams, Jr., 20, of Harvey Cedars, N.J., was taken to hospital with deep claw wounds on the left side of his head and left leg.

He and Robert W. Winters, 17, of Grosse Pointe City, Mich., were hiking near the top of 7,900-foot, Altyn Mountain at the time of the attack.

Winter, who had gone on ahead of his companion, had stopped to rest when he looked back along the trail and saw the bear sit down directly behind Williams, who also had stopped to rest.

LICKED NECK

"The bear got up and licked the back of Joe's neck," he continued. "He turned slowly. The bear pawed Joe, and then ripped his jacket."

"Then it grabbed Joe by the wrist. He jumped up. It bit him and jumped against him, knocking him to the ground."

"I picked up a heavy rock and threw it from about 10 feet. It hit the bear just above the shoulder."

"Joe was yelling, 'Don't leave me!' I told him to run if he got a chance. He ran down the mountain, and I started in another direction to get the bear to follow me. But it wouldn't."

"Joe began to trip and he ran down the steep grade and finally fell. The bear ran after him. About 150 yards from where it first attacked, it jumped Joe again and began to bite and claw him."

"I ran over there, picked up a rock and hit the bear on the top of the head."

REALLY MAD

"This time it really got mad and put its head and jaws right over Joe's head, biting and chewing."

"I left, running and yelling for help all the way down." He was met by park rangers who apparently had heard his screams.

North Rival To Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mines Minister Kiernan Friday forecast a brilliant future for the B.C. northland and warned that although Vancouver has been "home base" for much of its development, it can only "hold its position if it proves equal to the challenge."

PRIME MINISTER NEHRU

Nehru Sets Peace Mission

TRIVANDRUM, India (UPI)—Indian Prime Minister Nehru will travel to the riot-torn Communist state of Kerala Monday to try to restore order.

Anti-Communist demonstrations continued Friday in Trivandrum, the capital, with 1,000 marching to the governor's residence to demand dismissal of the Communist regime.

Official sources said Nehru, national head of the Congress Party, which has been opposed to the Reds, would spend three days in the state. Meanwhile Communist party spokesman A. K. Gopalan announced the party in Kerala would abide by Nehru's advice.

It was reported that Nehru would be asked to order the Congress party to stop agitating in Kerala.

Gopalan said the prime minister would also be asked to tell the Roman Catholic bishops "they are openly interfering in politics, which is unconstitutional."

Ottawa Highlights

Pallett Act 'Immature'

OTTAWA — Commons Speaker Roland Michener suggested Friday the conduct of government whip John Pallett in the Malton Airport land expropriation case may have been immature but not of the kind punishable by Parliament.

He tossed out as unjustified Opposition Leader Pearson's call for immediate House debate on his demand that Mr. Pallett's actions be investigated by a parliamentary committee.

Mr. Michener left the way open for debate as an ordinary motion later and Monday was set as the date.

Mr. Pearson appealed the Speaker's ruling and Mr. Michener was sustained by 131 to 32. The three CCF members in the House split, two voting with the government majority and one siding with the Liberals. Mr. Pallett did not vote.

The government's Unemployment Insurance Act amendments, which provoked more verbiage this session than any other single measure, received final Commons approval without a murmur and now goes to the Senate.

Harold Winch (CCF-Vancouver East) said it's "absolute torture" to put a man in solitary confinement in a prison where a solid steel door cuts him off from all sight and sound.

Justice Minister Fulton replied only three penitentiaries still have such doors.

H. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West) suggested that Hal Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union, should be deported, but Immigration Minister Fairclough said that, under existing law, she cannot take such action.

Justice Minister Fulton expressed interest in a suggestion of a provincial attorney-general about limiting the type of outside work undertaken by judges. He did not give details.

Island 'Chutist Jump Victim

EDMONTON (CP) — The air force Friday said a Vancouver Island airframe was killed Wednesday making his first parachute jump. Wallace Alfred Cameron, 26, of Alberni, leaves a wife and two young daughters. Cameron died at Cold Lake, 150 miles northeast of here, when his parachute failed to open properly.

Business Dying —Berry Growers

Total of 168 Years Teaching

Total of 168 years teaching in Greater Victoria schools is credited to these four teachers who retire this month. Honored at tea in Craigdarroch Castle yesterday were, from left, Miss Margaret Sanson, Miss Lillian B.

Smethurst, Miss Agnes Stewart, and Miss Gwen Hewlings. Also due to retire after 30 years service is A. J. Stevenson, principal of Sir James Douglas. — (Colonist photo.)

High Tariff Against U.S. Asked Here

Low United States freight rates and quantity production in California are killing the Saanich Peninsula strawberry-growing industry, William Mattick, 5273 Cordova Bay Road charged last night.

He called for the introduction of high import duty on the California berries to protect Canadian growers.

"The return to the grower this year is just under $4 a case," he said. "It costs about $5 a case to grow them for market."

"The only thing keeping strawberry growing alive on the peninsula is the number of moonlighters, who grow strawberries in their spare time and don't rely on them for their main source of income."

"About 60 per cent of the growers here are moonlighters. Some eight per cent are retired men and 32 per cent are full-time farmers."

PRICE AROUND 45

A check of Victoria fruit and vegetable stores yesterday showed the price of locally-grown strawberries yesterday around 45 cents for two hallocks.

Manager of a city supermarket said California strawberries sold locally recently were about 39 cents for one hallock.

Mr. Mattick said he would not grow strawberries commercially any more, apart from a few for sale through his own roadside market.

LOST $15,000

He said he knew of one large-scale grower who had lost $15,000 in cash through strawberries over four years. The figure does not include depreciation on equipment or labor.

"United States berries are on offer here cheaply," he said, "and we can't compete with them. They have quantity production and the climate."

Freight rates on cauliflower, for instance, were about the same from San Francisco to Vancouver as from Victoria to Vancouver, he said. And, the exchange rate between Canada and U.S. money favors the United States producer.

'COSTS ME $1,000'

"We aren't getting sufficient protection from U.S. growers," Mr. Mattick claimed. "It costs me $1,000 more to buy a U.S.-made truck in Victoria, to protect the Canadians making cars."

"If I am subsidizing the guy who makes trucks, why shouldn't he subsidize me? We should have some protection if we are to continue the industry here."

Leonard Dawes, secretary of the Saanich Fruitgrowers' Association, said sales this year were concentrated more on Vancouver Island than on the mainland.

MOVE THE STOCK

This was being done to move the stock to avoid the trouble of shipping.

He described the return to growers as "fair."

"The price has been reduced to the point where everyone can enjoy strawberries," he said.

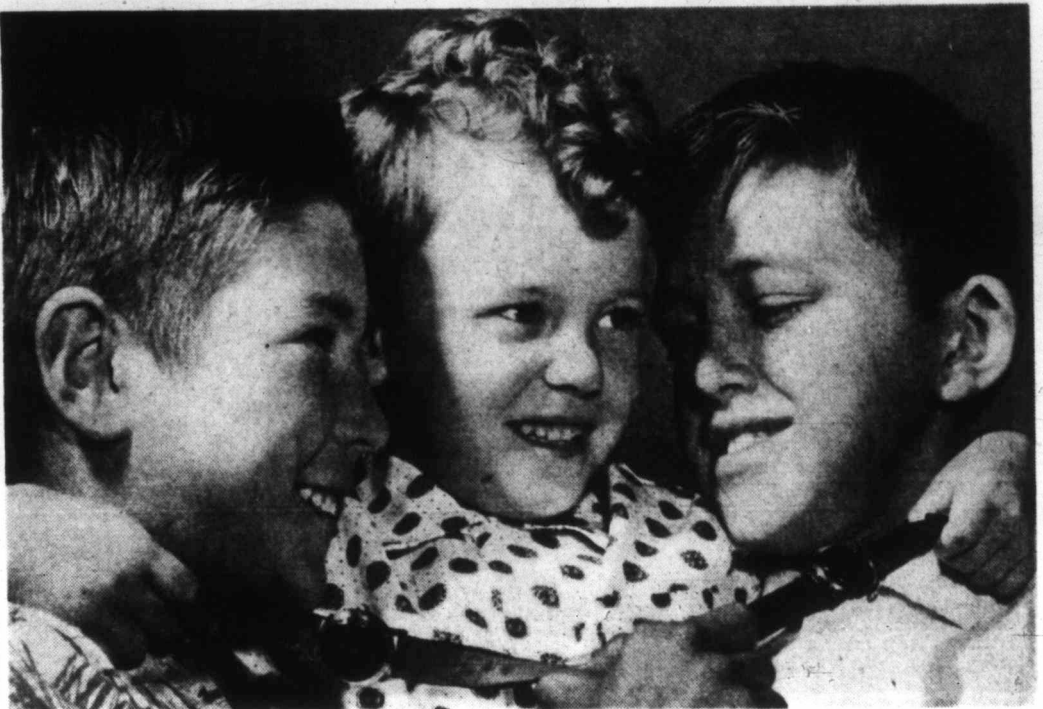

The crop has not quite reached its peak yet, he added, but the employment situation has eased with both students and adults picking the crop.

HELP BACK CROP

James Fox, manager of the Victoria office of the National Employment Service, said last night that recent cool weather had held back the ripening of the strawberry crop and had given growers a reprieve.

"We feel there is more chance of us meeting the demands by the time the peak is reached, next week," he said. "Most of the students in Greater Victoria are through with school by the 24th."

"Some are out picking now. We feel there will be sufficient."

Maladjustment in Schools

City Years Ahead of Plan To Cope with Delinquency

A system of combatting juvenile delinquency from the start through the schools was suggested yesterday by the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

Actually the system in essence has been in use in Greater Victoria schools for about 10 years.

But the committee, hearing of its use in Kelowna, recommended asking the Greater Victoria school board to consider adopting it, and also passing the idea along through the Union of B.C. Municipalities to the provincial government.

TRAINED PSYCHIATRIST

Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay told the committee the Kelowna school board had appointed a trained psychiatrist.

When a child started to show symptoms of maladjustment, he said, the teacher referred the matter to the psychiatrist, who took appropriate action, having the child's home life looked into if necessary in order that the causes of maladjustment and later juvenile delinquency could be overcome.

It appeared, Reeve Murdoch said, that the behavior patterns of maladjustment usually started by the Grade 4 level, and this system might go a long way in preventing delinquency.

CONSIDER HIRING

The committee suggested that the Greater Victoria school board should consider employing one or two such psychiatrist-counselors.

The school board has had a mental health consultant doing fundamentally the same work for about 10 years, superintendent John Gough said later, and "it's worked very successfully from the cases I have known."

(In the Victoria system, the consultant is a social worker, but the end result is the same. He refers many cases to the appropriate co-operating agencies, such as the Child Guidance Clinic, private doctors and the Family and Children's Service, with the aim of removing the causes of maladjustment.)

RESPONSIBLE PARENTS

The intermunicipal committee also discussed briefly, without arriving at a firm conclusion, the possibility of making parents more responsible for their delinquent children.

Coun. Fred Robinson of Oak Bay suggested municipalities should be asked to support legislation with this effect.

Reeve Murdoch said existing legislation had provisions which the attorney-general could ask magistrates to enforce more strongly. He said one such provision was that parents could be obligated to pay the cost of their children being kept in foster or detention homes.

If that provision were enforced more, he said, the need for a detention home would be reduced.

Queen's Welcome Will Be Warm Bennett Says

All British Columbia is looking forward to the visit of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, Premier Bennett said yesterday.

He said the visit means more to British Columbia than any other part of Canada because B.C. was a crown colony and was the first province to have an agent-general in London, Eng.

"Her welcome here will be exceptionally warm," the premier promised.

Study May Help Run-Down Areas

Brahm Wiesman, planning director of the Capital Region Planning Board, said yesterday he was pleased that city council had asked the board to make an "urban renewal" study.

Such a study could lead to redevelopment of run-down portions of the city with federal financial support. The federal government would also pay three-quarters of the cost of the study, if it approves it. Council, deciding to take no action on the offer of a Vancouver firm to make a study for $40,000, voted at its last meeting to ask the board if it would make a survey free.

"I do not envisage any budget problems," Mr. Wiesman said. "Because the board had this in mind when it prepared this year's budget."

He said an urban renewal study was very important. "The board has already delineated small pockets where housing conditions are obsolete and slum-like. Without positive action these conditions are going to spread, and the environment in residential areas is going to deteriorate rapidly."

"We should make use of federal housing legislation to stem the tide."

A LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

HOW CASUAL CAN YOU GET? From the sights one sees, a good many damsels must believe that "casual" means "let yourself go."

In this connection, we won't even mention the female who gads about in shorts and pin curls. We'll just consider those who wear a hodge-podge of any old shirt and shorts—pink plaid shorts and last season's tangerine suit blouse, for instance, a combination that seems to be a current super-market special.

Let's get it straight, girls; where clothes are concerned, casual means fashions for relaxed occasions, as opposed to dress occasions. A casual outfit is a fashion, not a thing of rags and patches. It must be assembled as carefully as any other or the wearer appears frumpy, even sloppy.

To make co-ordination easy, fashion designers offer casual separates in mated colors. But it is no trick to team them yourself. There are four good ways: exactly match colors; use a light and dark shade of the same color; contrast two complementary colors; combine a pattern and a complementary plain. The results are casual, with an air!

YOUR MOST FLATTERING COLORS

In fashion, nothing makes you lovelier than color. It can enhance your skin, hair, eyes and figure; it can express your individuality and style. Great powers, those! To learn how to put them to work for you, read our leaflet, "Your Most Flattering Colors." To obtain a copy, send your request to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin.

IWA Chieftain Pitches Plea To the Wives

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Irish, Suttie St., announce the engagement of their daughter, Sybil Mary, to Richard Davis Tinkham, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Tinkham, Tulip Ave. The marriage will take place on July 18 at 7:30 p.m. in Metropolitan United Church. The couple will live in Vernon, B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joe Morris, president of the International Woodworkers of America CLC, is making a pitch for the support of the wives of 27,000 lumber workers.

A bulletin sent to every woodworker's wife says: "Stand by your husband's union in this crisis, and the union will stand by you."

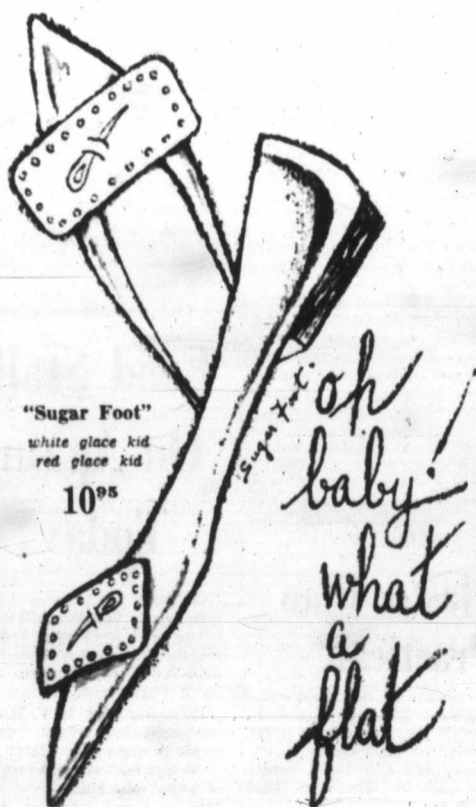

The union is asking its members to reject a majority conciliation board award and give the executive power to call a strike. The conciliation recommendation was for a 12-cent increase over the base rate of $1.72 an hour. The union demanded a 20-per-cent increase.

Morris' bulletin said: "I want the wives to know that we contemplate no course of action except one that will add to their future well-being. Our present-day standards would be very much lower had members and their wives lacked courage to challenge the employers."

He concluded: "Our wage dollar is buying fewer and fewer groceries."

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our 15-year-old daughter is up in her room crying. Her dad said she couldn't go to the De Moly dance unless he drove her and her date to and from the hall. My husband has a deadly fear of teenagers in automobiles. Whenever there's a picture in the newspaper of a horrible accident he calls it to her attention. Linda says she'd rather not go than agree to such conditions.

Her date for the dance is 17. He has a driver's licence and is a fine boy. He doesn't own a car, but drives the family sedan once a week. So far as I know he's never had an accident or a ticket for a moving violation.

Please, Ann, can you say something on this vital subject?—MOM.

Dear Mom: There's as much difference between teenagers as varieties of fish in the sea. Some teenagers are expert drivers and I'd rather get into a car with one of them than my 73-year-old uncle who has no vision in one eye and a dead battery in his hearing aid. Your husband must one day trust someone with the safety of his precious daughter, so he might as well brace himself for the jolt.

No 17-year-old boy in his right mind would let his date's father drive him to and from a dance. Such a stipulation will only make it rough on Linda.

Dear Ann: My wife thinks she can sing. She took a few lessons before we married but I can't see that they did her any good.

I'm perfectly willing to have her sing around the house, but when she takes her music to the homes of friends, I think this is going too far.

I'm afraid she's going to keep on singing unless I tell her she's imposing on people. I hate to hurt her feelings. We've been married less than a year. What do you say?—RUDY.

The things our best friends won't tell us—a close relative SHOULD. Do your wife a big favor and tell her frankly that she shouldn't sing for friends unless they BEG her.

Dear Ann: Do you think parents owe it to their children to make a will which leaves an equal amount to all?

One of our sons went over to his in-laws' side the day he got married. His wife never cared for us and she let us know it in many ways.

Although they live right in this city we never see or hear from them unless someone in the family gets married or dies. This has been going on for 11 years. We are not the type of people to push ourselves, so I stopped inviting them over when they refused three Sunday invitations in a row.

Now my husband and I are in our late 60's and thinking about making a will. Do you feel this son is entitled to share equally with his brothers and sisters who have always treated us well? We are not millionaires, but we own good property and there's more there than any of them think.—SHUNNED PARENTS

Dear Shunned: Parents do not OWE their children an inheritance. There's something in the Bible about throwing pearls before swine. Look it up.

New $35,000 Kindergarten To Be Specially Designed

What is believed to be the first building in western Canada to be specially designed for a pre-primary school is about to be constructed in the Cadboro Bay area.

To cost about $35,000, the new kindergarten will be situated on an offstreet lot near the corner of Arbutus and Telegraph Bay Roads.

Operators of the kindergarten are Mr. and Mrs. H. C.

Emery, who already have a similar school in South Burnaby. It will take children from 3½ years to regular school age. It will accommodate 75 morning pupils and a like number of afternoon pupils with an all-day nursery school for another 25, for convenience of working mothers. Like the South Burnaby operation, the new Cadboro Bay school will be known as the Goosey Gander Kindergarten, and it will initially have a staff of about seven teachers, trained in post-primary educational work. Construction of the new school is to start next week. Contractors are Brazelle Construction of Burnaby. The building is expected to be completed by late August in time for the opening of the school in September.

Bride Carried Roses

Of interest to Victoria is the wedding in Ottawa of Barbara Pritchard Tate, of that city, and Const. Michael Biggerstaff Wilson, RCMP, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Biggerstaff Wilson, Regents Place, Victoria.

Miss Tate is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Edward Samuel Tate of Ottawa.

The altar of the Church of St. Alban the Martyr was decorated with white gladioli and carnations. For the afternoon ceremony, Miss Tate chose an original in ivory French silk brocade designed in the Edwardian style with square neck, short sleeves and chapel train. Her matching Juliet cap bordered in pleated ivory illusion held her fingertip veil and she carried a cascade of talisman roses, and white feathered carnations.

Her only attendant was Miss Susan Anderson of Ottawa.

Fellow RCMP officers attending the groom were Const. J. B. McKay, best man, with ushers Const. H. E. Wiseman and Const. R. W. Richards. Following a reception in the University Club, Ottawa the newlyweds left on a motor trip to Quebec City.

Canon H. J. Jones officiated. Given in marriage by her father, Miss Smith chose a powder-blue lace over silk gown in bouffant three-quarter length and matched it with a shoulder length blue veil attached to a feather hat. Her flowers were pink and white. AB Thomas Hamilton was best man and ushers were Pvt. Geinn Peterson and Pvt. Ver-nard Freison.

Following a reception at the Foul Bay Road home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. F. C. Slater, the couple spent a honeymoon on the mainland and are now living on Foul Bay Road.

Unhappy Britons in Canada

Go Home, Pay Later

LONDON (CP)—A London travel agency has announced plans to help dissatisfied British immigrants in Canada returning to the United Kingdom.

Under the plan announced by Simtours Limited, the immigrant can fly back home providing a friend or relative in Britain deposits £10 with the agency and guarantees that the balance will be repaid within two years. Normally it isn't possible to buy one-way trans-Atlantic tickets on the instalment plan.

Simon Goodman, managing director of the agency, told a press conference the plan is being introduced because "there are many thousands of U.K. immigrants in Canada who are unemployed or in some other way dissatisfied."

He expects the peak period to be between September and December when he plans to handle about 1,000 passengers a month. Providing there is enough business, he said the firm will consider sea crossings.

Actors now shy away from the more flamboyant types of publicity, with rare exceptions. Today's performer is seeking respectability. That's nice for them, but rugged for those of us who cover this town and look wistfully back on the days when Hollywood meant glamour and excitement.

Swinging Endlessly in Alpine Gales

By JAN KING
North American Newspaper Alliance

ZURICH—Nearly two years after he lost his grip and dropped 120 feet from a narrow ledge of Mt. Eiger, Stephano Longhi is still dancing at the end of a rope 11,000 feet above sea level. He is dead, frozen and clad in his bright orange climbing suit.

Swaying to and fro in the Alpine gales, Longhi has become the object of morbid curiosity among villagers and tourists in the town of Kleine Scheidegg.

Last year, the Italian Alpine Club called on its members to climb Mt. Eiger and cut down Longhi's corpse, but without success. The perch from which Longhi plummeted is regarded as inaccessible. The tragedy occurred in August, 1957, when one of the amateur climber's fingers froze during his ascent.

Months or years from now, Longhi's nylon rope will break. His body will plummet down into a crevasse far below. Some time later, depending on glacier movements, it will reappear in a state of near-perfect preservation.

Despite their immovable appearance, Alpine ice fields are restless, twisting things. For a time, they may keep their contents locked in icy grip, but eventually they disgorge their burdens.

In 1820, for example, 11 British climbers who tried to scale Mont Blanc were hurled beneath an avalanche of ice. In 1861, the eternally restless glacier gave up the perfectly preserved bodies at a point four miles below the fatal ice fall.

The explorers had been drawn down toward the heart of the glacier by 500 feet a year, until they were finally freed at the ice field's edge. With their bodies came the men's knapsacks and a cooked roast of lamb.

In 1933, another Alpine glacier released five Italian soldiers who had lost their footing while on mountain patrol in the First World War. It had taken 35 years for the ice to relinquish its captives.

Lord Francis Douglas, British explorer, was in high spirits on a sunny July day in 1865 as he descended the slopes of the Matterhorn. He had just achieved the first ascent of the peak. Suddenly a rope broke and Douglas—with three others—dropped 3,000 feet into a crevasse.

From charts showing the movement of the Matterhorn's ice field, it was predicted that Douglas' body would reappear in 84 years. But in 1949, although the bodies of his companions were retrieved, climbers could not find Douglas.

Alpinists think the body of Sir Francis eventually will be relinquished by the mighty Matterhorn, and he will receive proper Christian burial. So may Stefano Longhi, swinging endlessly at the end of his rope.

River Jaunt By Kayak For Fun

WENATCHEE (CP)—Two bearded men paused overnight here Thursday, half-way in their kayak trip down the Columbia River from Revelstoke, B.C., to the river's mouth.

Gunter Bonnosky and Peter Schmidt said they are not trying for any records but are making the jaunt for the fun of it.

Veddy British Thrown To the Lines

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UPI)—Playhouse 90 got mixed up with the posh set Thursday and turned out a tosh play.

For the first time this season, the CBS drama showcase deflected to film, reeling off 90 minutes of a movie which had been shot in England for theatrical consumption.

"Dark as the Night" it was called and a dark and murky piece of dramaturgy it was stodgy at the start, muddied around the center, oozy at its close.

It all looked a little like a bumbling "B" movie, which is rather fitting, because it was.

He Had His Problems

The story was one of those veddy British things about a wealthy chap who was running for parliament, but whose wife was threatening to leave him, a bit of a fix, was it? Just to complicate matters, his chauffeur was trying to kidnap his wife, his chauffeur's girl friend was trying to rob his safe, a gossip columnist was trying to blackmail him and his housemaid was hysterical.

"What a situation," said the chap midway. "Just... about... as... dark... as... night." Which summed it up all rather neatly, I thought.

Michael Wilding, Dennis Price and Michael Hordern were among the players thrown to the lines. The female involved was Laraine Day. She looked properly distraught, and I can't say I blame her.

Lumpy Style of Dress

NBC-TV cut into its regular schedule Thursday to present some snippets of film cabled from London to North America.

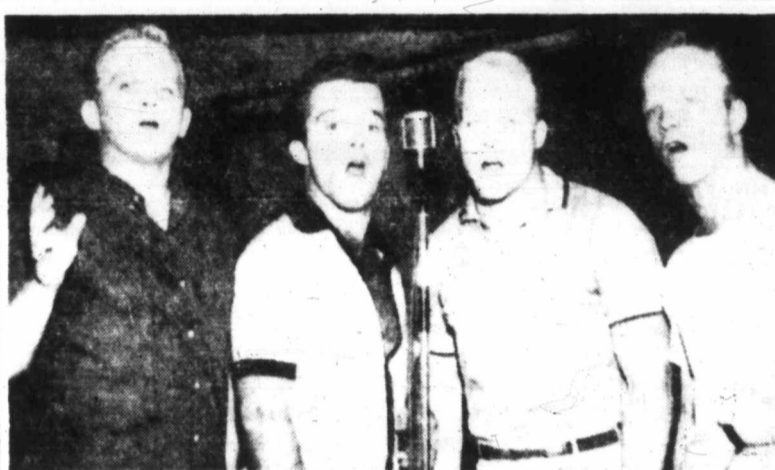

The historic film was shown in a couple of sections—the first contained shots of London Airport and Buckingham Palace; the second offered Queen Elizabeth waving la-ta to her mom and sister and Prime Minister MacMillan at the airport. The footage had been shot about two hours before it was shown here.

Its quality was fairly good, the definition was a little misty, but all of its parts were quite recognizable, right down to the lumpy style of dress of the Royal family.

Two years from now, according to an announcement on the special show, an improved cable will be laid from Scotland to Newfoundland. And in 1969, there should be something approaching an around-the-world cable.

The vistas this sort of thing opens giddy the senses. Think, for example, of a billion or so people all over the globe sitting down at once to watch American cultural contributions like Arthur Murray Party or The Price Is Right. Who knows? We may eventually end up numbing our enemies into submission.

Chips Off Groaner Now a Team

Mrs. Samuel Goldwyn Accepts a Challenge

DOLORES DEL RIO

DOROTHY DANDRIDGE

... ravishing

NEW YORK (UPI)—It isn't easy to name the 10 all-time great beauties of Hollywood, a city where prettiness is the price of admission.

But Mrs. Samuel Goldwyn, wife of the producer, accepted the challenge, even though she said "I should include one mystery woman because I have to go back there to live."

Before she was through, her list had grown to 12.

Her selections, and the qualities which set them apart, are:

1. Gloria Swanson—"The face is just glorious."
2. Greta Garbo—"Spectacular woman... her long bob polished off the flapper era."
3. Carole Lombard—"She represented the beauty of her era."
4. Joan Crawford—"For her superb figure, good teeth and healthy hair."
5. Virginia Bruce—"A Madonna's face... her beauty was incomparable."
6. Dolores Del Rio—"The classic brunette beauty."
7. Marlene Dietrich—"Now there is bone-structure for you!"
8. Elizabeth Taylor—"The voluptuous beauty. Her neck and shoulder line remind me of an Ingres painting."
9. Dorothy Dandridge—"She could come out of a wind tunnel looking ravishing."
10. Gina Lollobrigida—"For her earthy quality."
11. Shirley MacLaine—"Typical of today's good looks."
12. Marilyn Monroe—"All peaches and cream... a girly-girl."

All the "greats" on her list have two things in common—"good carriage. All those girls sit up straight. And they do something with what God gave them. They all work at being beautiful."

Lighting Smashed In Rooftop Chase

Three young men who took flight from city police over downtown rooftops early yesterday landed in court in the morning, charged with breaking $67.15 worth of neon lights in their escape.

William Charles Ruthven, 1601 Esquimalt, Roland L. Ruthven, 833 Admirals, and Robert Gary Brown, 1601 Esquimalt, pleaded guilty to the charge. All were remanded by Magistrate William Ostler to June 24 for probation report and sentence.

Const. Russell L. Redman told the court he investigated a noise at 12:40 a.m. in the 700 block of Johnson, and found the three men climbing a ladder. He shouted, they kept going, so he telephoned for assistance.

Climbing the ladder himself, he found the three had jumped 25 feet from the roof of the Odeon Theatre to the roof of Fashion Cleaners, and from that roof to the theatre marquee and to the street.

In doing so, they broke neon lights on the marquee. Other officers chased the trio, and two were captured in a nearby used car lot. The third was arrested later.

Frank Rosemus, 1319 1/2 Broad, was sentenced to six months in jail on a charge of possession of stolen cigarettes. He had been arrested while trying to sell the cigarettes for 15 cents a pack, having paid 10 cents for them himself.

In Colwood police court yesterday two Victoria juveniles were placed on probation for six months, and ordered to make restitution for breaking and entering several homes on the Malahat, and for taking a boat from Hall's Boat House.

Included in the amount of restitution is $250 worth of fishing gear which the youths threw into Saanich Inlet.

Also in Colwood William Falconer, Melchiosin, was fined $10 and costs for selling raw milk.

Gerald Dunnett of Jordan River in Sooke police court, and Miklos Farkas, 1270 Balmoral, in Colwood, were fined $50 and costs each for being minors in possession of liquor.

Constables in Bush Hear 'Go Home, Easterner'

Youths Shout Way to Court But Only Police Disturbed

Six young men charged in Oak Bay police court with causing a disturbance by shouting "Go Home, Easterner" on Beach Drive were acquitted yesterday.

Magistrate William Ostler found the six not guilty because, he said, no one except two police officers came forward to say they had been disturbed by the shouting.

Each of the six denied shouting at passing cars or hearing the phrase, only one heard by the officers.

SIX YOUTHS

The youths, ranging in age from 18 to 22, were Gary Sheppard, 3921 Scotton; William Frederick Fyfe, 3565 Beach; Daryl L. Holker, 3535 Killarney Place; William Leith, 3923 Cadboro Bay; Milton Barnes, 419 Henry; and Richard Harwood, 2662 Fernwood.

Constables Donald Gillam and Richard Lopeter of Oak Bay said they heard shouting and what they took to be cars backfiring on June 7 in vicinity of Beach Drive.

The officers said they left their police cars at a corner, and went on foot to a point about 65 feet from where the youths were then standing. The officers were concealed in some bushes.

ONE PHRASE

From there, they said, they heard the youths shouting at every passing car, but the only words they could catch made up the one phrase, "Go home, Easterner!"

After two or three minutes they went to the youths and asked for their names. When four girls came out of the house the officers asked for their names, too.

Const. Lopeter said that when he told one of the youths they would be charged, the youth urged "Give us a chance."

"You'll get your chance in court," the officer said he replied.

"With Ostler!" the constable said the youth asked, "He doesn't listen to anyone."

As the youths testified in defence, all were represented by counsel Lloyd McKenzie—each denied making any reference at all to Magistrate Ostler, as each denied the "Go home Easterner" shout.

NO CONFLICT

Magistrate Ostler said he didn't think there was a great deal of conflict between the evidence of the crown and of the defence. He was ignoring the firecrackers, he said, because they were not mentioned in the charge.

"One knows," he said, "that a group of boys of this age are or should be high-spirited. They start talking, and before they know it are shouting."

"I find it a fact they were shouting within the meaning of the charge."

However, the magistrate said, "to come under disorderly conduct or causing a disturbance, there must be evidence that someone was disturbed."

Magistrate Ostler said he didn't think the two officers qualified in this respect.

Flag Protest Banned While Queen Passes

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse says Royal Tour security officials have ordered cancellation of a demonstration planned in the Saguenay area by students and young workers to draw the Queen's attention to what they described as Canada's lack of a national flag.

A report from the newspaper's Chicoutimi, Que., correspondent says that the demonstration was planned by 500 youths grouped together in a "society for the promotion of a Canadian flag."

During the Queen's tour of the area early next week the youths planned to carry placards bearing this slogan in French and in English:

"Bienvenue à notre Souveraine—welcome to our Queen"; "Dommage le Canada n'a pas de drapeau—sorry Canada has no flag."

The report says the Royal Tour security committee felt that the demonstration, while well intentioned, might lead to "more serious troubles." The committee was said to fear that the words "sorry Canada has no flag" might be considered an insult to the Queen.

Claude Gousse, president of the flag movement, said that his group will bow to the security committee's order and will cancel the planned demonstration.

But the society claimed it was successful in another of its projects—the elimination of the Union Jack from decorations on business establishments and schools. Flags provided for children along the route to be followed by the Queen also would not include the Union Jack.

Where Did He Go?

Peking Man Lost for Good

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Scientist Frank Whitmore is about ready to admit that Peking Man, who didn't become famous until he was 300,000 years old, is lost for good.

Peking Man is the popular name given to a world-famous fossil collection found in a cave 40 miles southwest of Peking, China, 30 years ago.

Scientists call him Sinanthropus Pekinensis, but by either name he hasn't been seen or heard of since Dec. 8, 1941.

WAR CASUALTY

One of the oldest fossilized human beings ever dug up, Peking Man and his kin lived about 300,000 years ago. When he became a casualty of the Second World War, the science of anthropology suffered a serious blow.

Chinese Communists issue charges periodically that "an American agent abstracted Peking Man."

One scientist, Chinese paleontologist Pei Wen-Chung, thinks the Japanese snatched Peking Man, and will produce him some day when the heat is off.

MUST BE LUCKY

Whitmore, chief of the military branch of the U.S. Geological Survey, denies the first charge and disputes the second, but adds that "barring some tremendous stroke of luck," Peking Man never will be recovered.

Scientists digging in the limestone cave from 1928 to 1941 found braincases, jaws, teeth and some leg bones of some 38 individuals. These were known collectively as Peking Man, and placed in Peking Union Medical College.

ESCAPE FAILED

Just before Japan went to war against the United States, U.S. marines tried to spirit Peking Man, packed in three cases, out of the country aboard a ship steaming down the Yangtze Kiang River toward Shanghai.

The ship ran aground Dec. 8, 1941, the marines were captured and their gear lost. Peking Man has been missing ever since.

Writers Revolt Against 'Conformity'

Reds Dig Beatniks

Russians Add This Advice: 'Fight to Change Reality'

MOSCOW (NANA)—American beatniks are with it. Like, they understand what's wrong, man.

Novy Mir, Russia's leading literary monthly, says that "beat writers" such as Jack Kerouac, Allen Ginsberg and John Clellan Holmes, are victims of revolt against the staid, bigoted world of business, profits, money-grubbing, war and race psychoses.

They are rebelling against the "chauvinistic claims of the 100-per-cent Americans" and the "lacquered prosperity of the accursed American way of life," Novy Mir explains.

ANGRY MOTTO

"After us, the H-bomb!" is the motto of these "angry, prodigal sons of the West, in revolt against people's capitalism and bourgeois conformity," the Soviet journal goes on.

It says that America's beatniks have one thing in common with Britain's "angry young men"—"rejection of capitalist reality, of the world they live in—its morality, its traditions, its art. 'Convinced that the atomic apocalypse is coming and that the flood of 'capitalist war propaganda' can't be stopped, the writers have given up the desire to struggle."

NEGATIVE WAY

"Of course," says Novy Mir, "the convulsive outbursts of these young renegades of bourgeois society are infinitely far from genuine revolutionary protest." It points out that most of them are "unburdened by education" and that they have taken the "negative" way out from the complexities of the 20th century.

What should an American beatnik do to improve himself? According to Novy Mir, he must grow from a "literary and esthetic rebel" into a genuine proletarian revolutionary.

MORE OF FITTY

The tone of the Novy Mir article is one of pity more than of admiration for the beatniks. It does not recommend for young Russians the "purposeless torpor, the spontaneous, defiant despair of young people untroubled by the convulsions of modern society."

New Zealand's Geysers To Become Lake Bottom

ROTORUA, N.Z. (CP)—What happens when unquenchable fires are deluged with unending quantities of water?

That is more than an academic question in New Zealand. An area of violent thermal activity, fed by age-old sources of heat deep in the earth, will soon be drowned 65 feet beneath the surface of a new man-made lake.

Speculation is rife as to what the effect will be.

Work will start soon on the Ohakuri Dam, one of a chain of hydro-electric stations on the Waikato River, largest in New Zealand's North Island. The dam will transform the river into a lake for more than 20 miles upstream.

From time immemorial this has been an area of geysers, boiling springs, and brilliantly-colored terraces.

To show that activity is not decreasing a huge geyser that blows only occasionally came to life just recently with a thunderous roar. Rocks and rubbish were hurled to a great height and landed over a wide area.

But elderly members of New Zealand's Maori race who live in the vicinity are not convinced that Orakei Korako, as they call it, will yield tamely to inundation.

One warned: "The big geyser will probably blow everything up. Keep away when the water gets high."

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) —Prime Minister Diefenbaker's residence here, a tourist attraction that has been empty for much of the 11 years since Mr. Diefenbaker bought it, has been rented to H. B. (Bert) Cowan, general manager of the Prince Albert Daily Herald.

Duties in Ottawa have given the prime minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker little opportunity to live in the two-storey stucco house.

'River Rats' Planning Trek North

SEKSMITH, Alta. (CP)—The self-styled "River Rats" have planned their 1959 trip through the wilds of northern Alberta.

Each year this group of Peace River men, using this town 1,600 miles northwest of Edmonton as headquarters, travels by river boats through the wilderness areas, investigating history and geography of the remote regions.

They navigate rivers of every size and temperament. This year they start their season by travelling up the Smoky River, a few miles east of here. In previous years they've tackled the Omineca, Parsnip, Sukkanka, Mackenzie, Liard and Nahanni, passing through difficult and sometimes unknown country.

The group's well-stocked river boats are powered by outboard motors, but long and arduous portages are often necessary.

Who Is This Man?

"Who am I?" this man wonders—and city police and Royal Jubilee Hospital officials echo: "Who is he?" Young man, evidently in late 20s, was found unconscious early Thursday on downtown street, and taken to hospital observatory ward. He says very little, moves slowly, holding his head as if in pain, but apparently is uninjured and in good health. If you know him, telephone city police.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

'Bill 43' Test Case Completed at Nelson

NELSON (CP)—Decision of the first test case concerning the recently passed and highly-controversial British Columbia Trade-Unions Act, bitterly debated in the House as Bill 43, will be presented here June 30 by county court judge E. P. Dawson.

The case, Goloff Lumber Company, of Brilliant, versus the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and Ernest Boulton, union representative, was an application by the company for an injunction restraining the union from picketing the property of Goloff Lumber Company at Thumms and Brilliant.

The restraint, if granted,

City Couple

Juvenile Post Filled

Appointment of a new couple to superintend the Greater Victoria Juvenile Detention Home was announced last night by Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, chairman of the home committee.

Appointees are Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Ball, 2026 Richmond, chosen from more than 40 applicants for the job vacated three weeks ago by Lt.-Col. and Mrs. W. S. Dingley.

TAKE OVER SOON

Mr. and Mrs. Ball are expected to take over the position next week.

Mr. Ball, at present a chief guard at Yarrows Ltd., is a former commissioner at Thetis Lake Park and served on the Bermuda police force, where he and his wife worked with the girls' reformatory committee. He also served with the United States Air Force.

will be in force until a civil trial for damages entered by the company is finished. Goloff is suing the IWA for damages arising from alleged picketing by the union.

NOT SATISFACTORY

In his affidavit to the court, Goloff stated that contract negotiations with the union had not proved satisfactory and that the case had been referred to a conciliation board.

The union accepted the board's terms. They were refused by Goloff who had previously let a contract for the logging of his land.

The contract was taken by Mike Tomlin, formerly foreman of Goloff's mill and bush crew. They worked the contract until June 9 when the operation was picketed and Tomlin's crews refused to cross the lines.

DAMAGE WILL RESULT

Goloff's lawyer, Bruce K. Arlidge, of Nelson, told Mr. Justice E. P. Dawson that if the picketing continues, "irreparable damage" will result.

Under cross-examination by J. B. Varcoe of Trail, Goloff testified that he has been an independent lumberman since 1945 and that Tomlin had worked for him most of that time. He said he had given the contract to Tomlin as an incentive for greater production.

Mr. Varcoe said that Tomlin's being hired by Goloff as a contractor was a "sham set-up" and in effect, a lockout of the union. He stated that the injunction should not be granted, as it was simply a scheme to prevent the union from exercising its rights.

Mr. Arlidge said picketing of Goloff's property was in support of an illegal strike.

QUEEN MIXES FREELY IN BACKWOODS CANADA

Gets Close Look At Big Pulp Mill

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—The royal tourists landed Friday in a cloud of dust at the specially extended gravel airstrip at nearby Deer Lake and got a closeup of a big pulp and paper industry in all stages from the standing evergreens to the spools of newsprint.

It capped a busy and cheerful day that also saw the Queen distribute $10,000 worth of scholarships for retarded children in St. John's, open the new Gander air terminal and have some informal and unscheduled chats with friendly people along the way.

The scholarships set the style of gifts to the royal couple for this trip. There will be many similar funds and charities in her name by the time the 45-day, 15,000-mile tour ends in Halifax Aug. 1.

The weather was no problem. Fog lurked just off shore and seemingly anchored itself to the big icebergs that still loiter near the coast. But the Queen and Prince Philip weren't airborne long from St. John's before they saw bright sunshine.

She used the RCAF's swish VIP aircraft, a swank limousine and at Gander a modest low-priced convertible that seemed to suit the friendly atmosphere of the occasion.

The Queen smiled a lot and made a pretty picture in her Hartnell-St. Cyr combination tangerine and white silk pleated dress, short-bellied print jacket under a fairly heavy white coat, topped by a small white toque with three bows and white accessories.

Largest in World

She ran into fairly primitive conditions at the Deer Lake landing strip, described as having the largest waiting room in the world—"all outdoors." The ramp was an old-fashioned one and she used the rail to steady herself as it wobbled slightly.

A gust of wind caught the wide pleats of her skirt but it was smothered by the heavy coat. She laughed and made a girlish adjustment to a lower button.

Another example of the informality of the day occurred at Gander when she didn't bother to go around a rope guard but took a high step over it in order to get to a car where Mayor Jack Robertson, just recovering from an operation, was watching the activities.

She seemed disposed to dally

along the way, giving the prince time to ask just about everybody he met what was his job. He was hatless and with his hands behind his back he strode about unhurried and obviously interested in everything.

At the new main terminal, where she had an easy conversation with Transport Minister Hees, the Queen stepped out of line once to talk to one of the souvenir counter clerks. It was the first time she has mingled freely with unofficial people along the route.

Police estimated that 16,000 turned out to see the Queen in Gander, which meant that outposts and villages for miles around were represented. They were a friendly lot, dressed in their Sunday best, and the response on both sides seemed spontaneous and genuine.

Great Stands of Fir

At Deer Lake the gravel landing strip had been lengthened to accommodate the royal plane and its accompanying squadron of aircraft carrying officials and press.

Over the last stages of her flight Friday the Queen saw great green stands of spruce and fir that supply the big maws of the Corner Brook paper mill, turning out 1,100 tons of newsprint a day. Along the waterways she saw the results of the winter's cutting operations—great log booms that brown the surface and stir and creak toward the rushing flumes. She saw one boom of 30,000 cords being moved by a tug.

Later she entered the mill, one of the largest complete papermaking operations in the world. Her entrance was at a point where a flume hurled shining wet peeled logs onto a mountain high pile while great cascades of water wetted it down as a fire precaution.

She talked with energetic workers along the way and found out their individual roles in the making of newsprint.

When she moved to the seclusion of a private fishing camp on the spectacular banks of the Humber River Friday night there was a great boom of pulp at her window. It was feeding logs into the rushing white water. But there was plenty of free water and gear at hand if the prince wanted to wet a fly before retiring.

Later there was a possibility he might do just that.

Played with Zeal

The arrival at Deer Lake was as homey as anything yet on the trip. The Salvation Army band, which hopes soon to collect enough money to buy a bassoon, had practised the "Queen" softly over and over until her arrival. Then they played it with more zeal than has been heard so far on the trip. Bandmaster Mus Cole said he was proud of them.

After the handshaking at Deer Lake, the Queen drove the 34 miles to this big pulp-producing centre but the long stretch of gravel road had been salted and the dust was at a minimum.

At Deer Lake and 34 miles later at Corner Brook, the Queen passed lines of cheering, flag-waving and brightly-clad children and her car went slowly enough for everybody to get a good look.

The town of Corner Brook itself had a novel decorative scheme—illustrated Newfoundland songs: Jack Was Every Inch a Sailor and the Kelligrews Soiree and the Squid Jiggin' Ground.

Before leaving St. John's for Deer Lake shortly before noon the Queen and her consort attended a reception with 200 prominent residents of the capital. They also visited a construction site, where they mingled with awed workmen.

"The duke cracked a few jokes talkin' with me," said John Barrett of Bishop's Cove, a carpenter of 17 years, employed on construction of the $8,000,000 Confederation Building overlooking St. John's Harbor.

Premier Smallwood kept the royal couple occupied looking at maps and diagrams and a plastic-enclosed model of the 10-storey building. It will be Newfoundland's tallest structure and the home of provincial offices and the legislature.

Island 'Chutist Jump Victim

EDMONTON (CP)—The air force Friday said a Vancouver Island aircraftman was killed Wednesday making his first parachute jump. Wallace Alfred Cameron, 26, of Alberni, leaves a wife and two young daughters.

Cameron died at Cold Lake, 150 miles northeast of here, when his parachute failed to open properly.

Beacon Hill Again 'Cock of the Fleet'

Whaler crewman Alexander Cummings was one of the first to admire the "Cock of the Fleet" trophy won by his ship, HMCS Beacon Hill, yesterday at the annual two-day navy regatta. The trophy was awarded to the Beacon Hill for the second consecutive year after the crew obtained the highest number of points in all sailing and pulling events.—(Colonist photo.)

Cable Ship Crew Heroic in Inferno

FALMOUTH, England (Reuters)—A tale of efficient heroism at sea unfolded here Friday as 98 weary survivors of a mid-Atlantic ship fire arrived aboard a rescue vessel.

The 98 men were rescued from the British cable-laying ship Ocean Layer last Monday. They were brought here by the rescue vessel, the German ship Flavia.

Dr. John N. Aldington, head of Submarine Cable Ltd., owners of the Ocean Layer, told the tale at a press conference. As flames and smoke billowed from every porthole, he said, the officers and men trooped in boat-drill fashion to their stations.

"As our lifeboats took the crew aboard, the officers checked the men. They immediately discovered they were two short."

One of the lifeboats returned to the blazing ship and picked up the two men from the sea. Capt. Gerhard Theune of the rescue ship described the Ocean Layer as "a raging inferno."

The skipper of the cable ship, Capt. Anthony McPherson Ross, said that in another 12 hours the ship would have completed its task, but added that the break in the cable would not be hard to find. Cable was to provide a new telephone service between Newfoundland and France.

Ogden D. Gensemar, mayor of Summit, N.J., was aboard the Ocean Layer in his capacity as a staff supervisory officer. "We could not have had better treatment," he said of his rescuers.

Burned Man Clings to Life

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Stubbornly clinging to life 24 hours after being severely burned by a 7,300-volt power line, German immigrant Hans Felch was flown to Vancouver for treatment Friday night.

Felch was working with a Canadian National Telegraphs line crew Thursday when his head touched the power line. The jolt knocked him free of the power line and he lay entangled in other wires until he was taken down 20 minutes later by a British Columbia Power Commission crew.

North Bay Mayor Shocked

Wedding Rings Cut Off To Meet Medical Debt

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—Mayor Merle Dickerson said Friday a 27-year-old expectant mother whose wedding and engagement rings were cut off to satisfy a debt will either get her rings back or new ones.

"This shouldn't have happened in North Bay," he said of a bailiff's order Tuesday that Mrs. Glenavue Wilkes must give up her rings to satisfy a medical debt.

"I am going to apologize to that poor girl on behalf of the Nipissing Bar Association and I'm going to see the local lawyers, especially the lawyer that handled the case and the doctor he represented. I feel that they will do something about it," the mayor said.

If the girl could not get her rings back, he would buy her new ones.

The bailiff's order stemmed from an appendicitis operation in 1953, before Mrs. Wilkes met her husband whom she married last fall. She paid $1 monthly on the account for some time. In April last year the case came to court and was dismissed when Mrs. Wilkes said she couldn't pay the bill.

She said in court Tuesday she still could not pay it and the doctor's lawyer asked that her rings, which she declared to be her only possessions, be given as payment.

They were cut off when she found she couldn't slip them off.

Falling Tree Crushes 10

Two Men Plucked From Sea

TOFINO — Jack Walters in his speed boat hit a swell near the Leonard Island lighthouse Thursday afternoon and tore the bottom off the boat, throwing Walters and Robert Douglass, both of Tofino, into the water.

Fortunately Larry Arnet in his trawler, The Stream, was close at hand and pulled the two men out of the water and took them aboard his boat.

CALL ANSWERED

The department of transport Tofino life boat under Coxswain R. Hagelin answered the call and took the two men to Tofino.

The life boat hooked onto the wrecked speed boat and brought it to Tofino where it is being repaired by the Tofino Marine Works.

UNINJURED

The two men aboard were uninjured.

At 11 p.m. the same day the lifeboat answered a call from the trawler Delores K., which had developed engine trouble between Tofino and Ahousat and towed the trawler into Tofino.

The stricken boat is owned and skippered by J. Kettiah of Ahousat and is now in Tofino for repairs.

LADYSMITH—The Kinsmen Club is considering construction of a health centre building for this community at an estimated cost of $40,000.

Following investigation of the matter, the club has found that with grants from the provincial and federal governments and private organizations, only about $5,000 or $6,000 would have to be raised locally.

TOURED VILLAGE

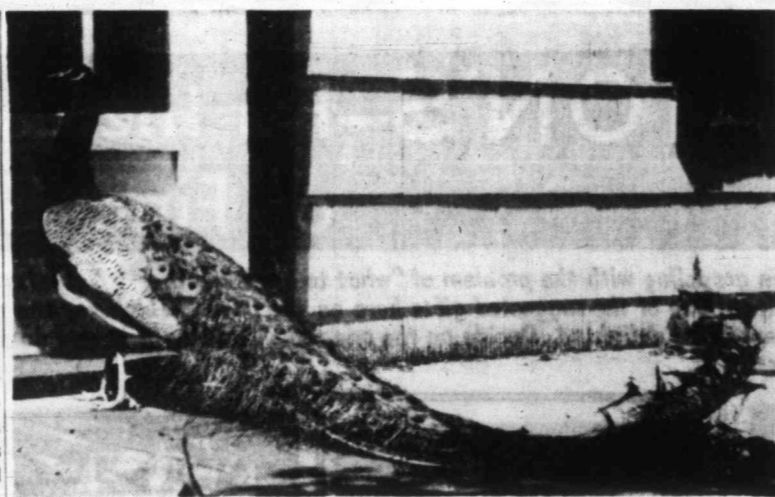

This week Len Ryan, chairman of the village commission accompanied by Kinsman representative E. J. Mackenzie and Dr. C. J. G. McKenzie, director of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit, toured Ladysmith inspecting a number of possible sites.

Dr. McKenzie told a regular meeting of the club that property below the United Church Hall appeared to be ideally suited for a health centre building.

INCORPORATE TWO

The Kinsmen Club is interested in providing a recreation centre for senior citizens as well as a community health centre, and Mr. McKenzie said there was no reason why the two could not be incorporated into the same building.

Carl Ballet is chairman of the Kinsmen committee investigating the project.

While pacing the floor wondering where missing one of his three wives is, Peco Peacock, one of 11 owned by Mrs. Paul Chapman, Leakes Road, can't resist the temptation of looking

Father-to-Be Wondering If All Wives at Home

DUNCAN — A "father-to-be" near here is nervously pacing the floor wondering whether one of his three wives has left him.

He is "Peco" Peacock, 12, formerly of India, who stays with his wives and some friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Chapman, Leakes Road, just outside Duncan.

They are the only colony of peacocks on Vancouver Island. Two of Peco's wives are behaving themselves and are sitting on eggs in the normal way, one in a sleigh and the other in a bed of poppies. But the third wandered off about a week ago leaving no trace.

'Hot Cargo' Cooled During Coffee Break

PORT ALBERNI—A Toms Brothers Ltd. truck started a trip to Victoria with a hot load Friday but Port Alberni volunteer firemen cooled it off before it got beyond city limits.

Driver and swamper stopped for coffee before leaving, and found a blaze in the cargo of household furniture. In addition to damage to the furniture, a large tire was ruined and interior of the van was scorched.

It is believed that a cigaret was dropped in a carton during packing or loading operations.

37 Babysitters Win 'Diplomas'

ALBERNI—Thirty-seven Alberni boys and girls have certificates showing that they are qualified in the practical art of babysitting.

Graduation ceremonies in Alberni Elementary School auditorium included presentation of certificates by PTA president Mrs. T. Mann.

Two of the top graduates, Mary Jane Premarukov and Donald McKamey joined with instructors Mrs. E. R. Gustafson and D. B. Loyd in a panel discussion of babysitting conditions and requirements. Mrs. Loyd, chairman of the committee which arranged the course, acted as moderator.

Students, ranging in age from 12 to 17 years, were complimented by Mrs. Mann on achievements shown when examination papers were marked. Twenty-five of the 37 received marks of 80 or better in what was described as a "stiff exam."

Mary Jane Premarukov and Donna Ansley were awarded 94, while Donald McKamey, top boy graduate, received a mark of 87.

Alberni volunteer fireman John A. Anderson, bank manager D. E. Francis, and members of the public health nurse ing staff, Mrs. Joan Grace and Jean Mitchell were among those who instructed during the six weeks' course.

Total of 168 Years Teaching

Total of 168 years teaching in Greater Victoria schools is credited to these four teachers who retire this month. Honored at tea in Craigdarroch Castle yesterday were, from left, Miss Margaret Sanson, Miss Lillian B.

High Tariff Against U.S. Asked Here

Low United States freight rates and quantity production in California are killing the Saanich Peninsula strawberry-growing industry, William Mattick, 5273 Cordova Bay Road charged last night.

He called for the introduction of high import duty on the California berries to protect Canadian growers.

"The return to the grower this year is just under $4 a case," he said. "It costs about $5 a case to grow them for market."

"The only thing keeping strawberry growing alive on the peninsula is the number of moonlighters, who grow strawberries in their spare time and don't rely on them for their main source of income."

"About 60 per cent of the growers here are moonlighters. Some eight per cent are retired men and 32 per cent are full-time farmers."

PRICE AROUND 45

A check of Victoria fruit and vegetable stores yesterday showed the price of locally-grown strawberries yesterday around 45 cents for two hallocks.

Manager of a city supermarket said California strawberries sold locally recently went about 39 cents for one hallock.

Mr. Mattick said he would not grow strawberries commercially any more, apart from a few for sale through his own roadside market.

He said he knew of one large-scale grower who had lost $15,000 in cash through strawberries over four years. The figure does not include depreciation on equipment or labor.

"United States berries are on offer here cheaply," he said, "and we can't compete with them. They have quantity production and the climate."

Freight rates on cauliflower, for instance, were about the same from San Francisco to Vancouver as from Victoria to Vancouver, he said. And, the exchange rate between Canada and U.S. money favors the United States producer.

"We aren't getting sufficient protection from U.S. growers," Mr. Mattick claimed.

"It costs me $1,000 more to buy a U.S.-made truck in Victoria, to protect the Canadians making cars."

"If I am subsidizing the guy who makes trucks, why shouldn't he subsidize me? We should have some protection if we are to continue the industry here."

Leonard Dawes, secretary of the Saanich Fruitgrowers' Association, said sales this year were concentrated more on Vancouver Island than on the mainland.

"We should make use of federal housing legislation to stem the tide."

He said an urban renewal study was very important. "The board has already delineated small pockets where housing conditions are obsolete and slum-like. Without positive action these conditions are going to spread, and the environment in residential areas is going to deteriorate rapidly."

'Jaywalkers' Jamboree' May Be Held in Duncan

DUNCAN — This city's downtown section may be cut off to auto traffic for a two-day "jaywalkers' jamboree" in September if businessmen show enough interest in a plan proposed by the Chamber of Commerce retail division.

"We hope to make a decision soon," said Gilbert Thom, retail chairman, last night, just before a meeting of businessmen on the subject.

Idea of the jamboree is to stimulate business, said Mr. Thom.

Craig and Station Streets would probably be blocked off at Canada, Government, Jubilee and Kenneth, he said.

LADYSMITH — Deputy Chief Jim Lumsden was elected to the post of chief of the Ladysmith volunteer fire department this week. He succeeds Chief Frank Jameson, whose resignation becomes effective at the end of this month.

Harry Blair, formerly captain, has been elected deputy chief. Bert Gilson was elected captain and William Grouhel, lieutenant.

One man is needed to bring the department up to full strength. Anyone interested in joining is asked to contact department secretary Keith Gourlay.

CHEMAINUS — Dennis Campbell who has been assistant personnel supervisor at MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., Chemainus division, has been promoted to personnel supervisor at the company's Northwest Bay logging division.

He has been succeeded in the position of assistant personnel supervisor here by Len Robinson.

Other staff changes announced by the company: Wally Laidlaw, transferred to accounting; John Sanders, transferred to sales; R. Johnston, in charge of documents section; Phil Bodger, transferred to documents department.

151 Tots Ready At Ladysmith

LADYSMITH — A total of 151 children have been registered to enter Grade 1 in district schools in September. R. W. Ovenden, district school administration officer, reported this week.

This total is 22 less than the total enrolled in Grade 1 last year, but experience has shown that a larger number report in September than register in June.

Support for Balloons Surviving the Test

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow is now quite sure of the success of a new, Victoria-made plastic bladder for the one-sagging centennial balloons, he said last night. One of the bladders, on test for almost a week, was still holding up firmly late yesterday.

Rebecca Spit To Be Park

QUADRA ISLAND — Recreation Minister Earle Westwood will unveil a plaque today at an old-fashioned picnic opening Rebecca Spit as a park.

The site is a long-time favorite for summer picnickers and is being developed by the provincial government.

CHEMAINUS — The owner of one of the most popular fishing, swimming and camping areas near here has refused to sell it for a public park.

North Cowichan Councillor Donald Morton reported to council he visited the owner, Mrs. G. M. Holman, and that she stated the land was not for sale.

Coun. Morton visited her after the provincial parks and recreation department indicated they were willing to develop it for a park and camping area.

The land is near the Chemainus River where it meets the Trans-Canada Highway.

MAPLE BAY — North Cowichan Council has increased by more than 50 per cent the minimum sale prices on their 10 remaining blocks of property here on the peninsula at the south end of the bay.

Pieces of property in the area that were a minimum of $500 were raised to $900 by council, with the rest being "raised accordingly."

The new prices affect all but those which have already been advertised for sale by tender.

NANAIMO — Guest speaker at Nanaimo Rotary installation ceremonies will be Archdeacon A. E. Hendy. Banquet will be held at the Malaspina Hotel, Wednesday.

Master Plan Practical?

Whether or not the Capital Region Planning Board's master plan for future development of the Victoria area is legally and financially practical will be discussed next week.

Speakers on the subject at a meeting sponsored by the Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, at 8 p.m. Thursday at 904 Government, will be J. E. Brown, deputy municipal affairs minister; W. T. Lane, municipal solicitor of Richmond, B.C., and John Tribe, Saanich comptroller-treasurer.

The show was officially opened by Mrs. G. B. Roberts, president of the garden club.

NORTH COWICHAN — Council has decided to invest $75,000 in short-term government bonds maturing in nine months.

Tenders will be called from banks, and the money invested with the one giving the best interest rates. They hope to get more than 5.5 per cent interest.

Reeve C. A. P. Murison said the money is from reserve funds and has become available because taxpayers have started paying their taxes.

Last month the council invested $65,000 in government securities.

New Library Proposed For Nanaimo

NANAIMO — A new public library building will be erected on Lubbock Square — if the recently formed library society can raise at least $15,000 by public subscription.

As soon as the money is in sight, the society will borrow $25,000, and the city will turn over the Lubbock Square property.

Art Lionel was named to head the society executive. The new building will have 4,000-square feet of floor space and room for 25,000 books.

It will be rented from the society by Vancouver Island Regional Library Board. Rental payments will go towards paying off the loan.

'Means More Here'

Queen's Welcome Will Be Warm Bennett Says

All British Columbia is looking forward to the visit of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, Premier Bennett said yesterday.

He said the visit means more to British Columbia than any other part of Canada because B.C. was a crown colony and was the first province to have an agent-general in London, Eng.

"Her welcome here will be exceptionally warm," the premier promised.

Study May Help Run-Down Areas

Brahm Wiesman, planning director of the Capital Region Planning Board, said yesterday he was pleased that city council had asked the board to make an "urban renewal" study.

Such a study could lead to redevelopment of run-down portions of the city with federal financial support. The federal government would also pay three-quarters of the cost of the study, if it approves it. Council, deciding to take no action on the offer of a Vancouver firm to make a study for $40,000, voted at its last meeting to ask the board if it would make a survey free.

"I do not envisage any budget problems," Mr. Wiesman said, "because the board had this in mind when it prepared this year's budget."

He said an urban renewal study was very important. "The board has already delineated small pockets where housing conditions are obsolete and slum-like. Without positive action these conditions are going to spread, and the environment in residential areas is going to deteriorate rapidly."

MOVE THE STOCK

This was being done to move the stock to avoid the trouble of shipping.

He described the return to growers as "fair."

"The price has been reduced to the point where everyone can enjoy strawberries," he said.

The crop has not quite reached its peak yet, he added, but the employment situation has eased with both students and adults picking the crop.

CHEERFUL DAY STARTS TOUR

"Who am I?" this man wonders—and city police and Royal Jubilee Hospital officials echo: "Who is he?" Young man, evidently in late 20s, was found unconscious early Thursday on downtown street, and taken to hospital observation ward. He says very little, moves slowly, holding his head as if in pain, but apparently is uninjured and in good health. If you know him, telephone city police.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Informal Chats Fill Busy Day

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—The royal tourists landed Friday in a cloud of dust at the specially extended gravel airstrip at nearby Deer Lake and got a closeup of a big pulp and paper industry in all stages from the standing evergreens to the spools of newsprint.

It capped a busy and cheerful day that also saw the Queen distribute $10,000 worth of scholarships for retarded children in St. John's, open the new Gander air terminal and have some informal and unscheduled chats with friendly people along the way.

The scholarships set the style of gifts to the royal couple for this trip. There will be many similar funds and charities in her name by the time the 45-day, 15,000-mile tour ends in Halifax Aug. 1.

The weather was no problem. Fog lurked just off shore and seemingly anchored itself to the big icebergs that still loiter near the coast. But the Queen and Prince Philip weren't airborne long from St. John's before they saw bright sunshine.

She used the RCAF's swish VIP aircraft, a swank limousine and at Gander a modest low-priced convertible that seemed to suit the friendly atmosphere of the occasion.

The Queen smiled a lot and made a pretty picture in her Hartnell-St. Cyr combination tangerine and white silk pleated dress, short-belted print jacket under a fairly heavy white coat, topped by a small white toque with three bows and white accessories.

Largest in World

She ran into fairly primitive conditions at the Deer Lake landing strip, described as having the largest waiting room in the world—"all outdoors." The ramp was an old-fashioned one and she used the rail to steady herself as it wobbled slightly.

A gust of wind caught the wide plate of her skirt but it was smothered by the heavy coat. She laughed and made a girlish adjustment to a lower button.

Another example of the informality of the day occurred at Gander when she didn't bother to go around a rope guard but took a high step over it in order to get to a car where Mayor Jack Robertson, just recovering from an operation, was watching the activities.

She seemed disposed to daily along the way, giving the prince time to ask just about everybody he met what was his job. He was hatless and with his hands behind his back he strode about unhurried and obviously interested in everything.

At the new main terminal, where she had an easy conversation with Transport Minister Hees, the Queen stepped out of line once to talk to one of the souvenir counter clerks. It was the first time she has mingled freely with unofficial people along the route.

Police estimated that 16,000 turned out to see the Queen in Gander, which meant that outposts and villages for miles around were represented. They were a friendly lot, dressed in their Sunday best, and the response on both sides seemed spontaneous and genuine.

Great Stands of Fir

At Deer Lake the gravel landing strip had been lengthened to accommodate the royal plane and its accompanying squadron of aircraft carrying officials and press.

Over the last stages of her flight Friday the Queen saw great green stands of spruce and fir that supply the big masts of the Corner Brook paper mill, turning out 1,100 tons of newsprint a day. Along the waterways she saw the results of the winter's cutting operations—great log booms that brown the surface and stir and creek toward the rushing flames. She saw one boom of 50,000 cords being moved by a tug.

Later she entered the mill,

one of the largest complete papermaking operations in the world. Her entrance was at a point where a flame burst, shining wet peeled logs onto a mountain high pile while great cascades of water wetted it down as a fire precaution.

She talked with energetic workers along the way and found out their individual roles in the making of newsprint.

When she moved to the seclusion of a private fishing camp on the spectacular banks of the Humber River Friday night, there was a great boom of pulp at her window. It was feeding logs into the rushing white water. But there was slowly of free water and gear at hand if the prince wanted to go fishing before retiring.

Played with Zeal

The arrival at Deer Lake was as homey as anything yet on the trip. The Salvation Army band, which hopes soon to collect enough money to buy a bassoon, had practised the "Queen" softly over and over until her arrival. Then they played it with more zeal than has been heard so far on the trip. Bandmaster Muax Cole said he was proud of them.

After the handshaking at Deer Lake, the Queen drove the 34 miles to this big pulp-producing centre but the long stretch of gravel road had been salted and the dust was at a minimum.

At Deer Lake and 34 miles later at Corner Brook, the Queen passed lines of cheering, flag-waving and brightly-clad children and her car went slowly enough for everybody to get a good look.

The town of Corner Brook itself had a novel decorative scheme—illustrated Newfoundland songs: Jack Was Every Inch a Sailor and the Kelligrews Soiree and the Squid Jiggin' Ground.

Before leaving St. John's for Deer Lake shortly before noon the Queen and her consort attended a reception with 200 prominent residents of the capital. They also visited a construction site, where they mingled with awed workmen.

"The duke cracked a few jokes 'talkin' with me," said John Barrett of Bishop's Cove, a carpenter of 17 years, employed on construction of the $8,000,000 Confederation Building overlooking St. John's Harbor.

Premier Smallwood kept the royal couple occupied looking at maps and diagrams and a plastic-enclosed model of the 10-storey building. It will be Newfoundland's tallest structure and the home of provincial offices and the legislature.

Beacon Hill Again 'Cock of the Fleet'

Whaler crewman Alexander Cummings was one of the first to admire the "Cock of the Fleet" trophy won by his ship, HMCS Beacon Hill, yesterday at the annual two-day navy regatta. The trophy was awarded to

Cable Ship Crew Heroic in Inferno

FALMOUTH, England (Reuters)—A tale of efficient heroism at sea unfolded here Friday as 98 weary survivors of a mid-Atlantic ship fire arrived aboard a rescue vessel.

The 98 men were rescued from the British cable-laying ship Ocean Layer last Monday. They were brought here by the rescue vessel, the German ship Flavia.

Dr. John N. Aldington, head of Submarine Cable Ltd., owners of the Ocean Layer, told the tale at a press conference.

As flames and smoke billowed from every porthole, he said, the officers and men trooped in boat-drift fashion to their stations.

"As our lifeboats took the crew aboard, the officers checked the men. They immediately discovered they were two short."

One of the lifeboats returned to the blazing ship and picked up the two men from the sea. Capt. Gerhard Theune of the rescue ship described the Ocean Layer as "a raging inferno."

The skipper of the cable ship, Capt. Anthony McPherson Ross, said that in another 12 hours the ship would have completed its task, but added that the break in the cable would not be hard to find.

Cable was to provide a new telephone service between Newfoundland and France. Ogden D. Gensemar, mayor of Summit, N.J., was aboard the Ocean Layer in his capacity as a staff supervisory officer.

"We could not have had better treatment," he said of his rescuers.

Burned Man Clings to Life

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Stubbornly clinging to life 24 hours after being severely burned by a 7,200-volt power line, German immigrant Hans Felch was flown to Vancouver for treatment Friday night.

Felch was working with a Canadian National Telegraph line crew Thursday when his head touched the power line. The jolt knocked him free of the power line and he lay entangled in other wires until he was taken down 20 minutes later by a British Columbia Power Commission crew.

North Bay Mayor Shocked

Wedding Rings Cut Off To Meet Medical Debt

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—Mayor Merle Dickerson said Friday a 27-year-old expectant mother whose wedding and engagement rings were cut off to satisfy a debt will either get her rings back or new ones.

"This shouldn't have happened in North Bay," he said of a bailiff's order Tuesday that Mrs. Glenavue Wilkes must give up her rings to satisfy a medical debt.

"I am going to apologize to that poor girl on behalf of the Nipissing Bar Association and I'm going to see the local lawyers, especially the lawyer that handled the case and the doctor he represented. I feel that they will do something about it," the mayor said.

If the girl could not get her rings back, he would buy her new ones.

The bailiff's order stemmed from an appendicitis operation in 1953, before Mrs. Wilkes met her husband whom she married last fall. She paid $1 monthly on the account for some time. In April last year the case came to court and was dismissed when Mrs. Wilkes said she couldn't pay the bill.

She said in court Tuesday she still could not pay it and the doctor's lawyer asked that her rings, which she declared

'Bill 43' Test Case Completed at Nelson

NELSON (CP)—Decision of the first test case concerning the recently-passed and highly-controversial British Columbia Trade-Unions Act, bitterly debated in the House as Bill 43, will be presented here June 30 by county court judge E. P. Dawson.

The case, Goloff Lumber Company, of Brilliant, versus the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and Ernest Boulet, union representative, was an application by the company for an injunction restraining the union from picketing the property of Goloff Lumber Company at Thurms and Brilliant.

The restraint, if granted, will be in force until a civil trial for damages entered by the company is finished. Goloff is suing the IWA for damages arising from alleged picketing by the union.

NOT SATISFACTORY

In his affidavit to the court, Goloff stated that contract negotiations with the union had not proved satisfactory and that the case had been referred to a conciliation board.

The union accepted the board's terms. They were refused by Goloff who had previously let a contract for the logging of his land.

The contract was taken by Mike Tomlin, formerly foreman of Goloff's mill and bush crew. They worked the contract until June 9 when the operation was picketed and Tomlin's crews refused to cross the lines.

DAMAGE WILL RESULT

Goloff's lawyer, Bruce K. Arlidge, of Nelson, told Mr. Justice E. P. Dawson that if the picketing continues, "irreparable damage" will result.

Under cross-examination by J. B. Varcoe of Trail, Goloff testified that he has been an independent lumberman since 1945 and that Tomlin had worked for him most of that time. He said he had given the contract to Tomlin as an incentive for greater production.

Mr. Varcoe said that Tomlin's being hired by Goloff as a contractor was a "sham set-up" and in effect, a lockout of the union. He stated that the injunction should not be granted, as it was simply a scheme to prevent the union from exercising its rights.

Mr. Arlidge said picketing of Goloff's property was in support of an illegal strike,

City Couple

Juvenile Post Filled

Appointment of a new couple to superintend the Greater Victoria Juvenile Detention Home was announced last night by Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, chairman of the home committee.

Appointees are Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Ball, 2026 Richmond, chosen from more than 40 applicants for the job vacated three weeks ago by Lt.-Col. and Mrs. W. S. Dingley.

TAKE OVER SOON

Mr. and Mrs. Ball are expected to take over the position next week.

Mr. Ball, at present a chief guard at Yarrows Ltd., is a former Commissioner at Thetis Lake Park and served on the Bermuda police force, where he and his wife worked with the girls remand committee. He also served with the United States Air Force.
